BLUE SUN PHENOMENON IN MELBOURNE

London, Yesterday. The "Evening Standard" contains a report of a strange phenomenon observed in Melbourne, in consequence of a severe duststorm which swept across the city on Good Friday and provided the residents with the sight of a blue sun.—Trans-Ocean.

Garden City Near Castle Peak

The "Sunday Herald" learns that a big development scheme is now well under way at Ping Shan in the New Territories, which, when completed, will convert a large area, hitherto unoccupied, into a garden city on the lines of Kowloon Tong.

It is understood that a Chinese syndicate has purchased a large tract of ground, which has already been levelled and marked off into building plots. Communication with the Castle Peak Road has been made by means of a first class concrete road which will be adequate to take the heaviest motor traffic.

400 BUNGALOWS

It is understood that provision has been made for the construction of some 400 bungalows each of which will be fully detached and enclosed in its own garden. It is estimated that the total cost of each bungalow will not exceed about $2,500, while additional ground can be purchased by arrangement.

ELECTRICITY LAID ON

Several houses have already been ordered and are nearing completion and provided the support that is expected is forthcoming, it is hoped that the whole scheme will be completed in three years.

The houses will be modern in every respect and will be electrically lit.

WAYS OF ESCAPE FOR A SPOKESMAN

Shanghai, Yesterday. The suggestion that 719 Japanese prisoners, stated to have been captured by the Chinese in the Talerchwang battle and now on the way to Hankow, are in reality Chinese dressed up in disguise, was made by the Japanese military spokesman today.

"In view of the physical similarity between Japanese and Chinese, this would be a simple matter," the spokesman declared.

"It would moreover be well in accordance with China's known methods of dissimulation."

Asked whether he offered this as a serious reply to the queries concerning Japanese prisoners, the spokesman replied "Certainly." — Reuter.

ROME PACT TEXT FLOWN TO LONDON

Rothermere And Beaverbrook Jubilant

NEW WESTERN PACT NOW PREDICTED

LONDON, YESTERDAY.

A COPY OF THE ANGLO-ITALIAN AGREEMENT, WHICH IS TO BE SIGNED IN ROME THIS EVENING, REACHED LONDON BY AIR THIS MORNING. THE TEXT WILL BE PUBLISHED IN THE ITALIAN CAPITAL AT 6 P.M.

For the first time in years the newspapers of all parties in Britain are unanimous that the outlook in foreign affairs to-day is brighter than at any period for a long time past.

This optimism leads the "Daily Mail" to declare that the Rome negotiations are really the start of talks for conclusion of a new Western Pact.

The reduction of Anglo-Italian tension, says the paper, that will follow signature of the new treaty, will result in the early despatch of a new French Ambassador to Rome, and this will contribute substantially to a far-reaching agreement among the western powers.

The paper claims to know that M. Corbin, the French Ambassador in London, has been instructed to inform Whitehall of France's full approval of the Anglo-Italian agreement.

M. Corbin, who at present is in Paris, had many conversations before he left London with leading members of the British Government, when the prospects of a comprehensive agreement among the Western powers are said to have been discussed.

Details of the Pact, if received in time, will be found in the Stop Press column in Page 24.

bassador in London, has been instructed to inform Whitehall of France's full approval of the Anglo-Italian agreement.

M. Corbin, who at present is in Paris, had many conversations before he left London with leading members of the British Government, when the prospects of a comprehensive agreement among the Western powers are said to have been discussed.

OCCASION FOR REJOICING

The "Daily Express" says that signing of the Anglo-Italian agreement must be considered an occasion for rejoicing.

This agreement promises to remove the tension between England and Italy that has existed since the Abyssinian war.

The Baldwin Cabinet was responsible for this tension, the paper says, because of its policy regarding Abyssinia.

Not only did the Government of the day drop the Hoare-Laval plan but it also dropped Sir Samuel Hoare (then Foreign Secretary) himself.

BETTER DAYS

To-day, says the paper, one cannot and will not, make reproaches against Earl Baldwin, who has retired.

Reproaches are only to be levelled at Members of Parliament themselves, and now, the paper thinks, "better days are in store." — Trans-Ocean.

HALL OF VICTORY

Rome, Last Night. The Anglo-Italian Agreement is being signed at 6 p.m. in the Hall of Victory in the Palazzo Chigi.—Reuter.

NO EFFECT ON ROME-BERLIN AXIS

Rome, Yesterday. Writing in reference to the signature of the Anglo-Italian Agreement in "Giornale d'Italia" to-day, Signor Gayda, Signor Mussolini's principal press spokesman, says that observers would be guilty of a grave error if they assumed that the agreement with Britain would mean Italy away from Germany.

"Nothing can weaken the Berlin-Rome Axis, which remains the cardinal principle of Italian policy," says Signor Gayda. — Trans-Ocean.

NOTHING TO FEAR

Rome, Yesterday. Signor Gayda, writing in "Giornale d'Italia," assures Germany that she has nothing to fear from the new Anglo-Italian Agreement. The Rome-Berlin axis, he says, is in no way weakened, and the axis does not conflict with the Agreement.—Reuter.

ANGLO-FRENCH TALKS

Paris, Yesterday.

The British Ambassador, Sir Eric Phipps, had a further meeting with the French Foreign Minister, M. Georges Bonnet, today.

Political circles declare that Sir Eric and M. Bonnet discussed the planned Anglo-French parleys and arranged the programme for the conversations.

M. Bonnet also received the Soviet Ambassador, M. Suritz, who discussed the League of Nations.

It is thought in some circles that Russia will oppose recognition of the Italian conquest of Abyssinia.—Trans-Ocean.

A high tide and a north-west wind caught many motorists napping at Peking on April 6. They were watching yachting on the Thames and the sudden rise of the river enveloped their cars. Some motorists had to be rescued by canoes. Photo shows motorists marooned near the tow-path. (Fox Copyright: By Air Mail).

NORTH-WEST FRONTIER FIGHTING

New Delhi, Yesterday. A British officer, Capt. I. D. B. Dewar, of the Dogra Regiment, was killed and seven Scouts wounded in fighting against tribesmen in the hills north of Spitoli to-day.—Reuter.

ANGLO-U.S. TRADE PACT

London, Yesterday. Three members of the Australian Federal Parliament will arrive in London on April 28 to discuss the Ottawa Agreement and the pending Anglo-American trade treaty, with British M.P.'s. The Australian M.P.'s are Sir Earle Page (Deputy Premier and Minister for Commerce), Mr. R. G. Menzies (Minister for Industry) and Mr. T. W. White (Minister for Customs.)

Informal discussions will also be held on a number of other questions, such as defence, immigration to Australia and finance.—Trans-Ocean.

Attempt On Stalin's Life: New Version

London, Yesterday.

Newspaper readers to-day were entertained with another report of an alleged attempt on the life of Stalin.

The report, which emanates from Prague, says that the attempt was made in the Kremlin. Would-be assassin, it is said, was a former G.P.U. officer who approached the Soviet Dictator and whipped out a revolver.

At this point the story differs from similar reports in the past. The revolver did not miss fire. What happened was that Stalin's personal bodyguard stepped in front of his master and knocked the weapon out of the officer's hand.

Rounding out the story nicely were some mysterious forged documents, which were found on the ex-G.P.U. officer's person.—Trans-Ocean.

DIRECT HIT WRECKS SHEKLUNG BRIDGE

Canton, Yesterday. After trying in vain for months to demolish the Shek Lung Bridge, on the Kowloon-Canton Railway, Japanese bombers yesterday secured their first direct hit on this vital structure.

The Japanese success followed heavy bombing of the railway in the vicinity of Shek Lung the previous day, which destroyed a large portion of the track and delayed traffic for five hours.

Now, following yesterday's direct hit on the bridge, traffic between Kowloon and Canton has been suspended for several days at least.

Yesterday's bombing resulted in severe damage to one of the vital spans of the bridge, the entire structure having been moved six inches out of position by the detonation.

Desperate efforts are being made by repair gangs to restore the damage, but it is feared that it will not be possible to use the bridge for several days.

CANTON ANXIETY

Much anxiety has been caused in Canton, as it is thought that the Japanese raiders, having hit the bridge itself, will now concentrate on totally destroying it.

Construction of a new bridge to replace the present large steel structure, would mean serious interference with what is aptly

YIHSIEN BATTLE

Chinese Held Up By Own Blockhouses

HANKOW, YESTERDAY. THE CHINESE FORCES WHICH BEGAN ATTACKS ON YIHSIEN, ON THE TIENTSIN-PUKOW RAILWAY, THE DAY BEFORE YESTERDAY, HAVE OCCUPIED THE NORTH-EASTERN OUTSKIRTS OF YIHSIEN, STATES A MILITARY COMMUNIQUE ISSUED HERE TO-DAY.

The Japanese troops in the town, estimated at 10,000 strong, are now entirely surrounded, and it is claimed that their retreat has been cut off.

The Japanese are fighting back hard against the Chinese, it is learned, and yesterday launched two violent counter-offensives from within the town. Both attacks, however, were repulsed.

JAPANESE CLAIM SUCCESS

Tokyo, Yesterday.

The War Office, which preserves a significant silence on the progress of events in South Shantung, issued a communique to-day claiming that a Chinese division had been badly cut up in fighting in North Honan, north of the Yellow River.

There are indications that large reinforcements are likely to be sent to China in the near future to meet what is described as "the present difficult situation."

Rumours of acute Cabinet dissension continue to spread in Tokyo, in spite of official denials.—Our Own Correspondent.

The communique states that nevertheless the final assault against the town is being temporarily held up while the Chinese await the arrival of fresh troops.

A Chinese flying column last night is stated to have advanced four miles south of Tenghsien, about 25 miles north of the Grand Canal, on the T.P.R.

It is expected that this column will soon push on towards Tenghsien, which, according to Chinese reports, is stated to be defended by only a few hundred Japanese.

HILL BLOCKHOUSES

Military despatches from Talerchwang point out that conditions in south-east Shantung are exceedingly difficult for offensive operations as the area is full of blockhouses built into the hills, which enable the Japanese to hold out against Chinese attacks.

These blockhouses, which were originally built by the local populace as protection against bandits, were strengthened and co-ordinated by the Chinese armies as defences to hold up the Japanese advance in Shantung.

Now, by an ironic stroke of fate, these blockhouses are being used to hold up the Chinese advance.

HEAVY ARTILLERY

The Chinese Command is being forced to bring up heavy artillery to blast down their own blockhouses, in order to force the Japanese out.

This is stated to be greatly slowing up the Chinese offensive in this area.—Reuter.

described here as "China's life-line."

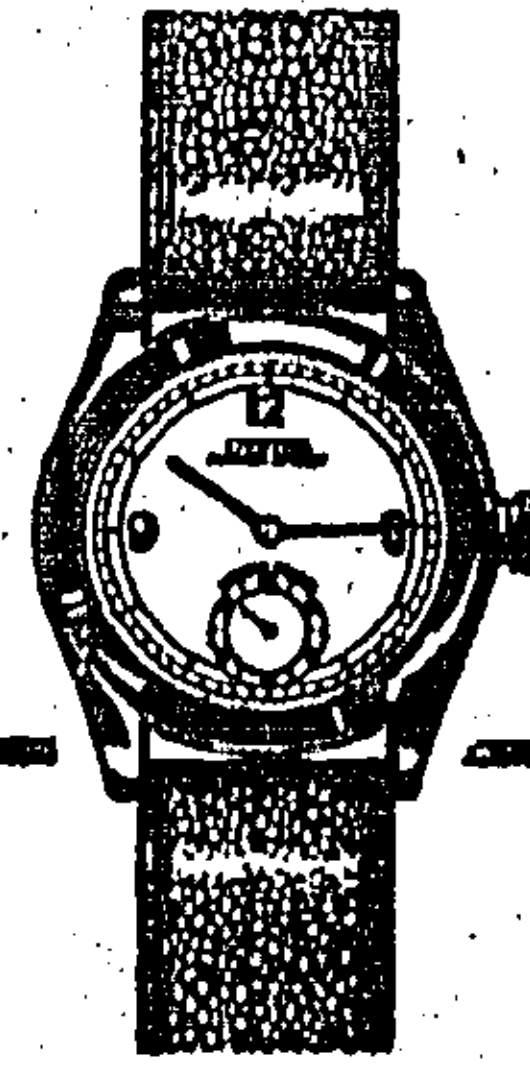

FERRY SYSTEM

Meanwhile, while goods traffic will certainly be interrupted indefinitely, the railway authorities hope to resume the passenger service from Kowloon to Canton to-morrow (Sunday) by ferrying passengers across river at this point.—Our Own Correspondent.

A LONDON MODISTE tells you How Simple Frocks can become Model Gowns

NEVER in the history of fashion has the woman who is clever with her needle such opportunities as now, when a few hours spent on hand-stitchery will change a simple garment into an individual creation.

Model houses in both Paris and London have given a lead which most women can follow with a little trouble and very little cost.

Not only dresses and blouses, but even tailored suits can be improved by the embroiderer's needle.

An embroidered floral motif on the lapel of one dark suit, another with a few rows of simple darning stitch in white bordering revers, sleeves and hem of skirt, and yet another carried out with white darning stitch in vertical rows, giving effect of pin-striped material and employed for skirt only or for coat only—these provide a few examples of what can be achieved in this way.

Here are a few good rules to observe. Always buy your embroidery materials, whether wool, cotton or silk, from well-established makers, making sure that they are fast to sun and washing.

Fine wool can be used for embroidery on silk as well as woollen fabrics.

Mercedized silk or flax thread in bright colours is effective for children's rompers or holiday frocks. Brown holland embroidered in reds, blues and greens is an ideal medium for these.

When planning an embroidered border, pattern, take a folded strip of paper and mark the folded edge with a few pencilled dots at equal distances apart.
With this measuring-stick as a guide, mark all along your border with dots in pencil or tailor's chalk. Next fix each of these dots with a knot of cotton, and you can devise any simple repeating pattern with good effect.

Use the same method if you are doing an all-over powdering of spots or sprigs on a garment, spacing out and fixing your dots before beginning the embroidery.

By this method you will need no transfer patterns, and you can make your own designs, adding considerably to the original effect of your handwork.

These are just a few rules to guide you.

All the examples sketched on this page are carried out in simple stitches, easily followed from the diagrams.

In the top left-hand corner you see a very smart effect obtained by navy cuffs, collar and sleeves, with pot-hooks embroidered in navy blue chain stitch.

Below this is a child's frock in linen or fine jersey. The dress is green or rose, the flowers white, with centres of dark green or cherry.

Centre sketch is of a white blouse, its floral embroidery in blue and green. It would look well worn with a skirt of plaited black silk, with braces to match.

Same skirt, minus the braces, could be worn with the smart little jumper which forms the final example, providing a smart semi-evening toilette.

Jersey fabric would be a good medium, and here are some suggested colour combinations—navy, with rings embroidered in coral and beige, white and green, or two shades of yellow.

Or, if you preferred, you could use mat satin in white or black with the rings embroidered in gold and grey silk.

WHEN you are unpicking, do it in the French style, rather than in the usual tedious manner of unpicking stitch by stitch.
Pull the top thread as far as possible and snap off, turn in the underside, then pull and snap the free thread there. Return to the top side and proceed as before. Try this method, and you will be delighted with its simplicity.

BOLEROS Are Back Again

THE bolero has come back with a flourish of trumpets. A good thing, too, for it is an obliging mode, leaving ample scope for ringing the changes in both day and evening clothes, and even opening the door to the rejuvenation of last year's frocks.

While in Paris our artist sketched two excellent examples of this style. The first, which you will see above, was from Chanel's spring collection, and shows a white lace bolero coat over a plain black frock.

The second example (below) is from Jean Dessès, and gives an idea of the effect of a bolero in white plaited with black afternoon frock.

Third sketch is from Main-bocher, and gives you something new in evening silhouettes, a white moire coat of which the very modish flare emphasises the slimness of the black skirt.

In London last week Victor Stiebel produced what was admitted to be one of the best displays he has achieved.

His evening frocks draped on Grecian lines are among the best things I have seen in the dress world. They are artistic without being "arty."

Next best item in the collection are the ingenious frocks for the really young, with billowing skirts, wide strapped-in ribs and minute bodices, often shoulder-strap-less. One of the loveliest designed on these lines was of white tulle trimmed only with a long spray of pink rambler roses.

Stiebel uses these sprays frequently instead of the more orthodox posy or cluster of flowers. A smooth oyster satin was distinguished by a long spray of apple blossom and fruit from bust almost to knee length.

He has tried out many new colour schemes. The most striking and effective was a frock with harlequin panels of fuchsia shades glimmering through cloudy grey tulle.

His colours for evening frocks fall into two classes—palest blue, pale sugar pink, lime, gold and pastel shades on the one hand, and strong shades, which include combinations of two tones of red or orange, vivid black greens, strong blues and golden browns on the other.

Blouses in the spring collections are a sheer delight.

One lovely example by Rochas is in three lateral bands of pink, pale blue and pink, these bands divided by insertions of narrow white Valenciennes lace; these in turn interlocked by a turret pattern of black Valenciennes lace.

Another from the tricot house of Ahny Blatt is in hand-knit white lace, centre front buttoned with navy blue buttons, and is bordered with a double row of scallop work in navy blue wool buttonhole stitch, standing away from the blouse.

Front fullness, which is an outstanding feature of many new frocks, does not seem to me too practical or too universally becoming, but there is sufficient choice in styles for you to give this or the exaggerated fullness of some of the day frocks a miss if you feel inclined.

No longer do women seize upon every idea that is proclaimed
"new" just because of its novelty, and the designers, learning that we have preferences of our own, are at last making provision accordingly.

The butler gaped. But Peter carried on. "I have with me," he said, "an assurance from Sig- nor Mussolini that I am not here; that, in fact, I do not even exist."

But Peter slipped inside just in time. And then everything was hunky-dory, except that certain famous politicians would insist on trying to walk through him, under the impression that he did not exist.

HELPFUL HINT

A. R. P. continued! We have now learnt how to deal with fire-bombs, by means of the statu- tory shovel and sand-bucket.

It must be remembered, how- ever, that Britain's enemies are invariably cads, and may start dropping explosive bombs. If so, the correct procedure is as fol- lows:—

When you see the bomb fall- ing, go as quickly as possible to a telephone and call a taxi. When it arrives, place therein such property as is easily port- able, together with such wives or offspring as you may need, and direct the driver to some place outside the threatened area.

Don't forget your toothbrush.

A HUNDRED and fifty medical students who recently sat for an examination have been in- formed that they must sit again, as the authorities have discovered that there was a lot of cheating.

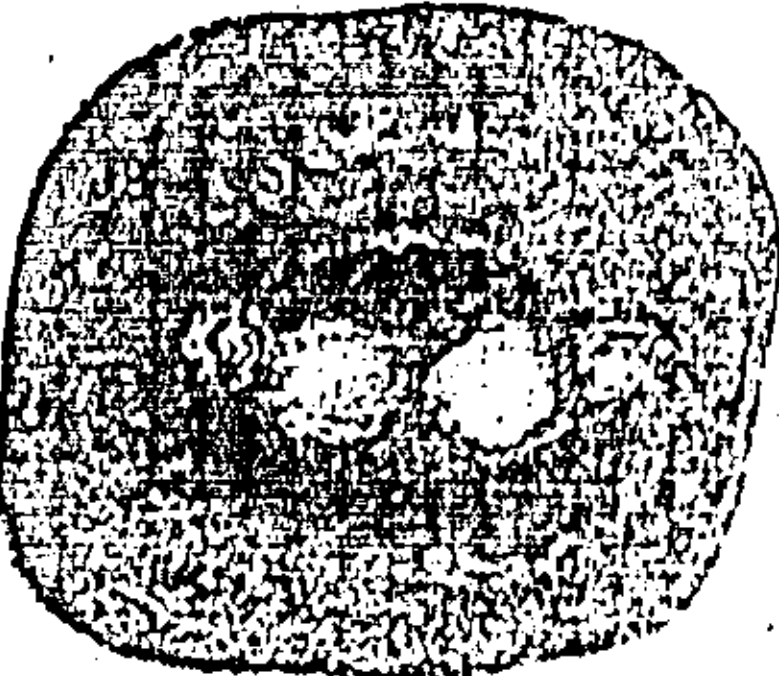

It is rumoured that those who are found to gain fewer marks than they did last time will be offered responsible posts in the Secret Service Department of the Foreign Office, where, it is hoped, they will be found qualified for necessary and patriotic service of their country.

LOST CHANCE

I READ that the schoolboy who, while refereeing a football match, accidentally swallowed the whistle, has had it successfully extracted. This was a pity, as he may have lost an opportunity of achieving fame.

I have in mind the other boy who, having a bad stomach- ache, choked back his tears. He refused to have them removed, and became a famous crooner.

Then there was the boy who swallowed an insult. He allowed it to remain in his system, and be- came a great barrister, noted for his repartee.

"Surely, old boy, this is hardly the day to be taking my driving test?"

Headline of the week

I WISH to add my complaints to know. Sometimes I think the those of the motorists who dear man . . . She broke off keep writing about "ROADS THAT CAUSE ACCIDENTS."

The other day I was going along at about 80, when, sud- denly, without giving me any warning, the road deliberately twisted.

This crude practical joking must be stopped. No doubt the roads think it funny. If so, they have a very poor idea of wit.

LITTLE OLD LADY

"I'm awfully sorry to interrupt you again, but you were so kind to me last week, and so helpful with your advice, that I felt I simply must ask your assis- tance again."

Miss Fluttering-Slightly poked her head round the door again, looking more than ever like the Little Old Lady of the song.

"As I was saying to the Major, I don't know what I should have done without your help. And the Major said to me, 'I think so, too, Archibald, because he's so very Sly.' That's what he calls me, you "And yet he's such a nice boy, and he seems to be so very keen about it all. He seems to think it the duty of everyone of us to help."

"And what is worse, my cousin Tabitha supports him. I know it is just hot-headedness, and that he'll soon grow out of it, but I just can't give her the chance to reproach me. I've never forgotten the incident about the . . . but there, I mustn't waste too much of your time."

"I really would like to help you, Archibald, because he's so very sincere about it. Do you think it would be any good if I go home and ask Jenkins and cook to ac- cept the same wages as the under- housemaids? Yes, that's it. Then they'll all be equal. Thanks ever so much for your advice. Good afternoon."

A GENTLEMAN has advertised in the Green Badge Journal, organ of London Taxi-drivers, for the name of the driver whom, in a fit of absent-mindedness, he for- got to pay.

The day may come, when lunch lies heavy on the gazook, and death seems near, and all one's sins pass before one in review, when conscience may move me to advertise for the owners of the forty-seven silk umbrellas for which, in forty-seven fits of ab- sent-mindedness, I have substitut- ed cotton ones, price 4s. 11d.

But I see no sign of it yet. At the moment, everything's going fine.

A NEWSPAPER interview re- cently described Garbo as "dressed like a schoolmarm." Current photographs of the lady in question pointed to the impli- cation that schoolmistresses look like something left over from the jumble sale.

The modern schoolmistress is not like that. A deputation of them called upon me, request- ing a refutation of the slur. They wore their school blazers, school caps, school ties, and smartly-pressed flannel trousers.

Their leader, a whopping great Newnham hockey Blue, said, "Give these cads something pretty hot! Do we, or do we not, look dowdy?"

"No, madam," I replied, courte- ously, "you do not. I'd like you better if you did."

And, chucking them all under the chin, I threw them downstairs.

BUOYANT REVENUE

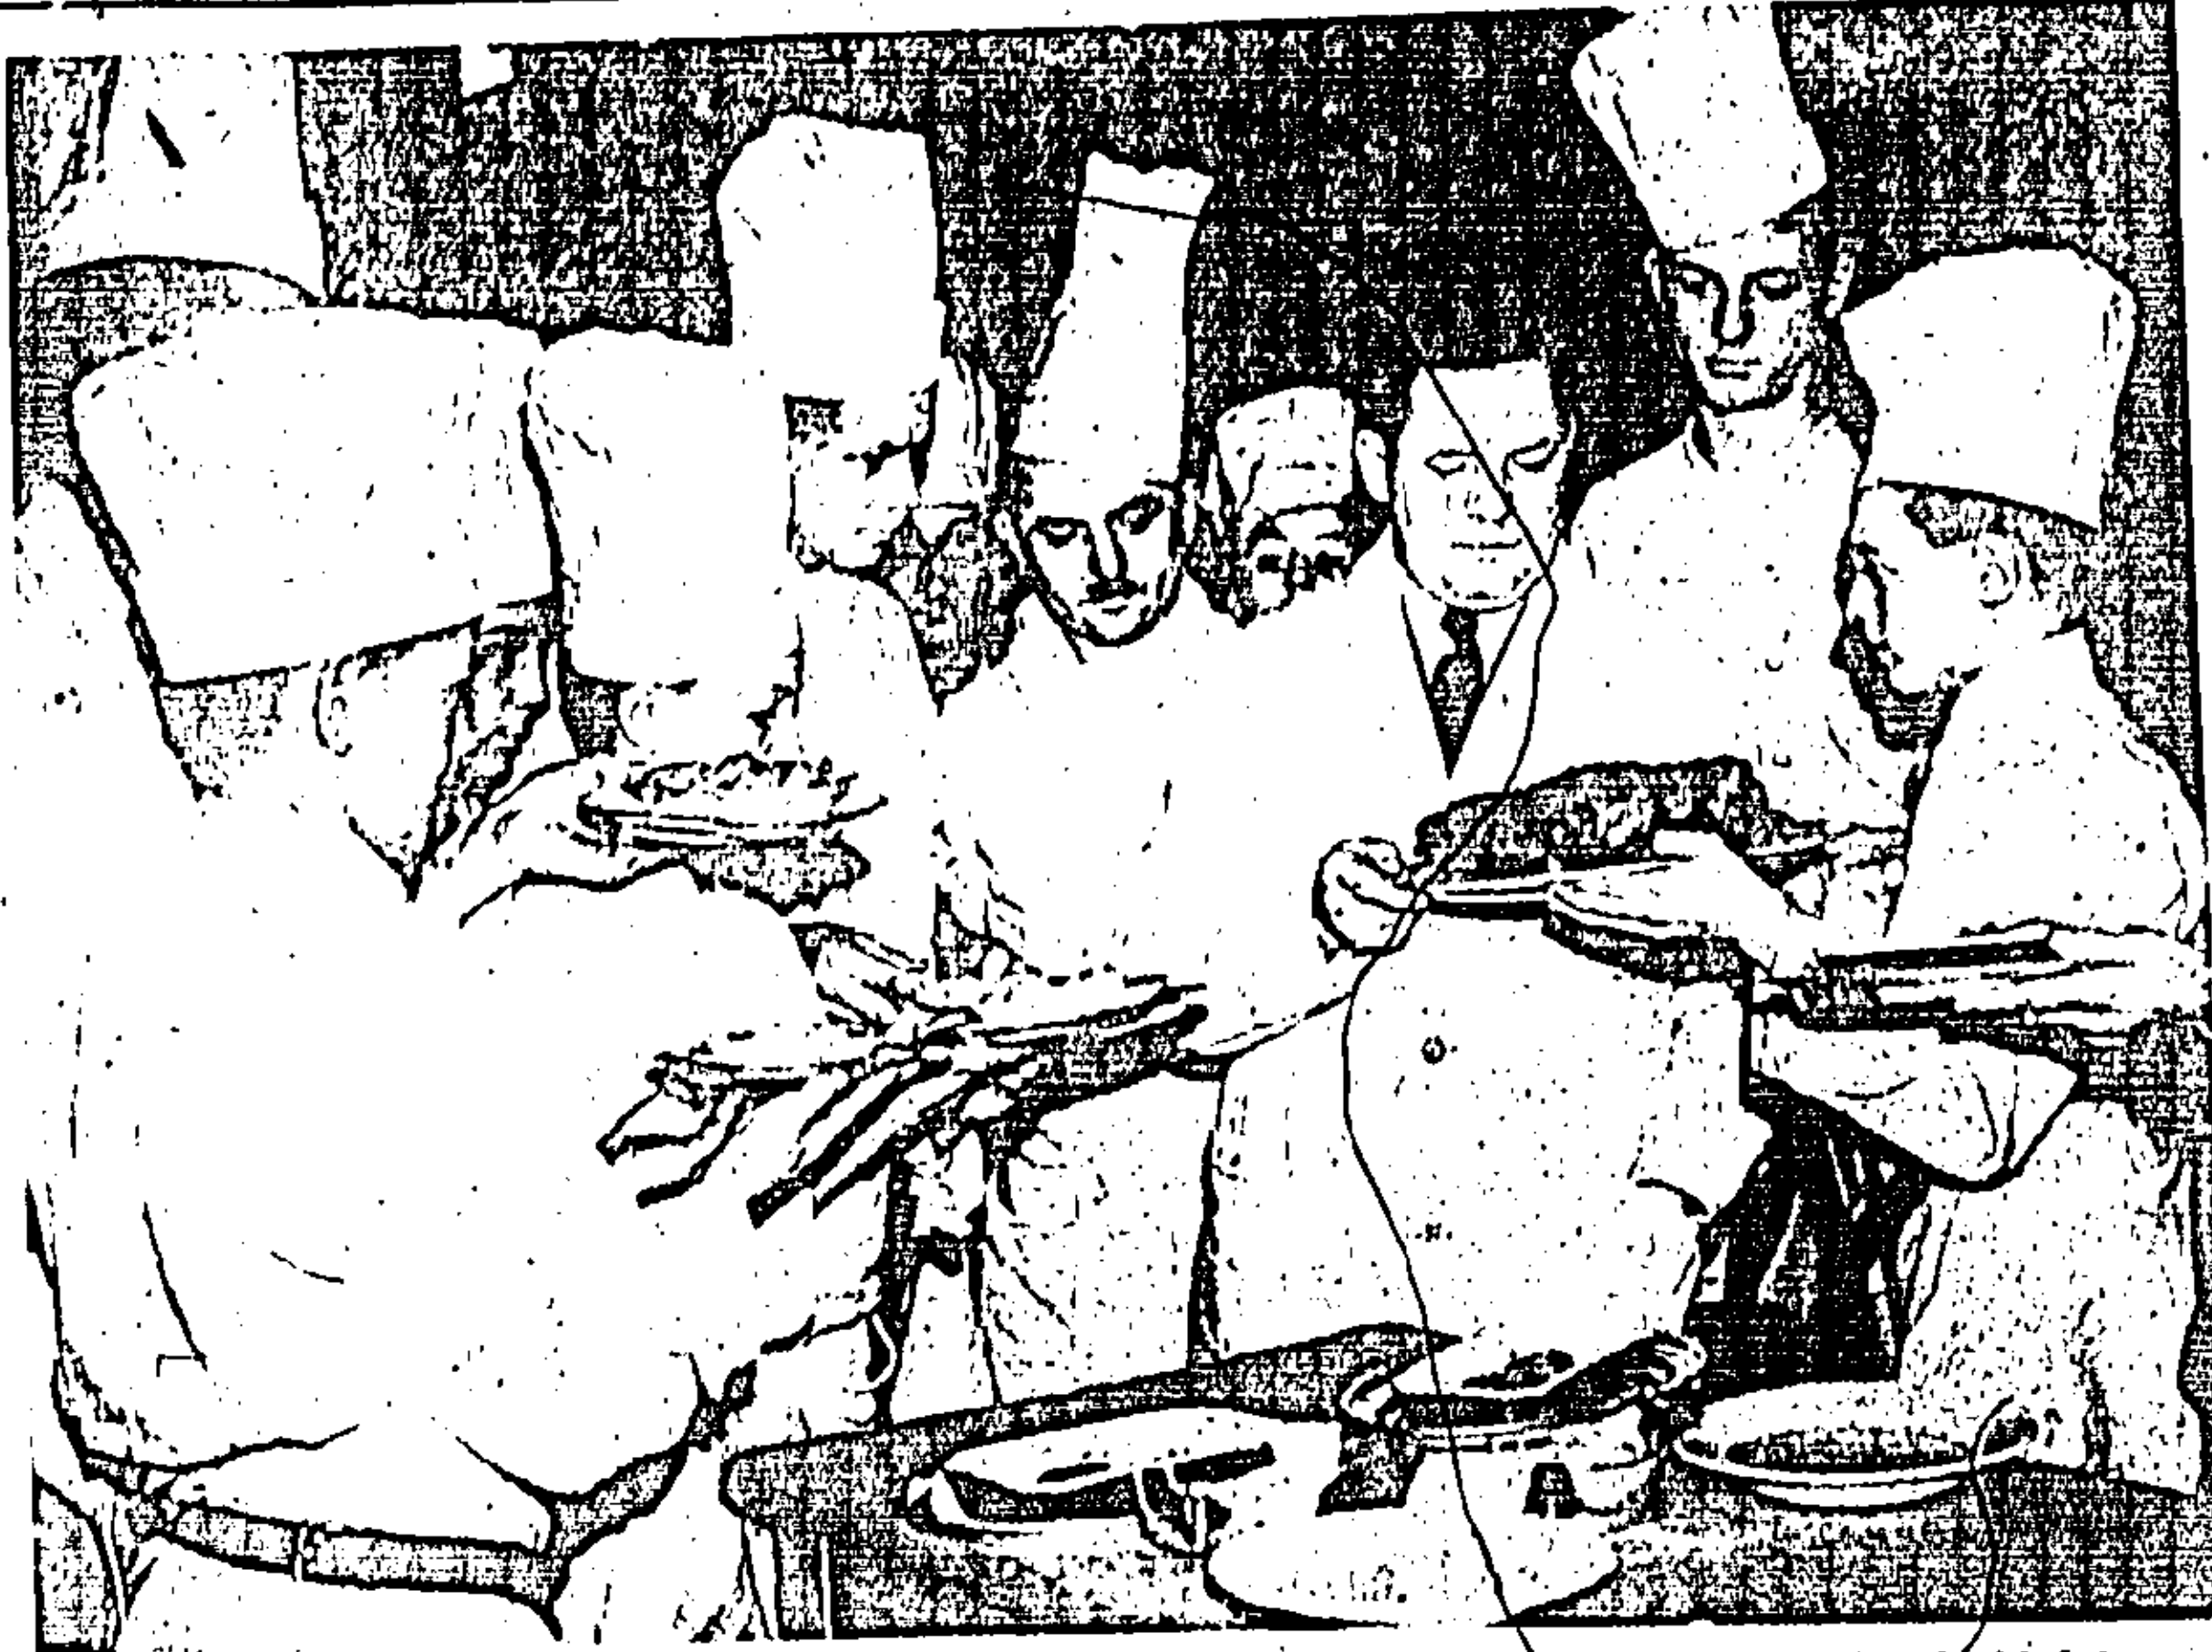

Colony's Record February

Duties Fifty Per Cent. Higher Than Last Year

Hong Kong's revenue buoyancy is again remarkably demonstrated in the official statement of the Finance Department for February released yesterday.

Total revenue during February was $2,668,392.31 as compared with $1,919,151.58 in the corresponding period of last year, while the revenue from January 1 to February 28 was $6,426,590 as compared with $5,114,233 last year. The Estimates have already been vastly exceeded.

SOONG SILENT ON RUMOURS

The "Sunday Herald" correspondent in Shanghai yesterday reported strong rumours in Chinese and Japanese circles that Mr. T. V. Soong, Chairman of the Aviation Commission and head of the Bank of China, will shortly assume the post of Minister of Finance.

It was suggested that for the past two months, Mr. Soong has been practically Minister of Finance and that official publication of Mr. Soong's new post is being delayed for special reasons.

However, in Shanghai yesterday it was reported that all arrangements have been completed for Mr. Soong to take over the Ministry, which will be officially announced from Hankow very soon.

Questioned by the "Sunday Herald" yesterday afternoon, Mr. Soong declined to make any statement.

CHINESE CHAMBER AND RENTS CONTROL

Representations to Government by the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce on two issues of major importance, water finance, and rents control, are likely to be made shortly.

The "Sunday Herald" understands that a meeting of the Executive is being held this coming week to draft the Chamber's

Most striking rise is to be found under the heading of duties, the receipts from which, at $716,662, were 50 per cent. greater than last year. For two months, the total income from this source was $1,698,631 compared with $925,206 for Jan., 1937.

Port and harbour duties continue to show a slight falling off, but under every other head of revenue, important increases have been recorded. The Post Office was $22,500 up in February as compared with last year, the Kowloon-Canton Railway by $76,000, licences by $240,000 and land sales by $50,000.

EXPENDITURE RISES

Offsetting the rise in revenue is an increase in expenditure by $350,000, during February and $830,000 since the beginning of the year.

Education Department expenditure in February was $421,166 as compared with $141,624 a year ago, while an item of $590.74 for Air Raids Precautions, making a total cost of $1,072 since the beginning of the year, is a new charge. A total of $50,000 will be spent before 1938 is out.

THE "PLUM"

The only marked reduction is under the heading of Public Works Extraordinary which involved a cost of $46,009 during the month. The total expenditure under this head for January and February was only $72,114, which compares with $160,652 in the same months of 1937, itself a low spending year for P.W.E.

Against estimates of a deficit for the first two months, the Colony secured a credit on the right side of the ledger to the extent of $900,000.

commentary on the Rents Commission Report, a commentary which is likely to be highly unfavourable on many of the principal points covered by the Report.

Objection is also manifest in Chinese quarters to the proposal to abolish the free allowance of water and to impose a flat rate.

No Alarm For Missing Daughter

"No news is good news" was the opinion expressed by Professor Hsu Ti-shan, of the Hong Kong University, when questioned by the "Sunday Herald" yesterday afternoon regarding the whereabouts of his 19-year-old daughter, Miss Hsu Shan-hsien, who has been missing from her home, No. 125, Robinson Road since Friday morning, April 1.

Professor Hsu stated that although further messages have been cabled to Hankow, no replies have been received.

The family are convinced that Miss Hsu is on her way to Hankow to engage in war relief work, as she indicated as much in a letter to a friend in Hankow. It is thought probable that she has not yet reached Hankow owing to the difficulty of securing accommodation in trains between Wuhan and Canton.

ARCHDUKE FERDINAND RELEASED

Berlin, Yesterday. A Vienna message states that the Archduke Josef Ferdinand has been released from concentration camp and has returned to his estate in the country.—Reuter.

CHINA TRAINS HER NEW ARMY

Canton, Yesterday. China is taking no chances of delay in supplying her armies in the north through cutting of the Canton-Hankow Railway by air bombing.

With large numbers of new army lorries arriving in Canton every week from abroad, hundreds of Chinese soldiers are now being trained as drivers for these vehicles.

The authorities envisage either substituting railway transport by road transport or supplementing the former method in moving supplies of arms and munitions to the north by convoys of lorries.

AMATEUR CHAUFFEURS

Familiar sight in the roads surrounding Canton is dozens of trucks being driven by soldiers as yet amateur chauffeurs.

"When this new branch of the army has been trained," said an official to-day, "we will make the Canton-Hankow highway another Soviet-Sinifu road."—Our Own Correspondent.

MOSCOW RADIO PLEA FOR SPAIN

Moscow, Yesterday. The Moscow radio station to-night made what appears to be a last-minute appeal to the Democrats to abandon non-intervention and to openly aid the Spanish Government.

The broadcast, which was conducted under the auspices of the Third International, appeals to Communists in other lands to urge their governments to save Spain.—Trans-Ocean.

DEATH OF STEVE BLOOMER

London, Yesterday. The death took place at Derby to-day from bronchitis of the international football player, Steve Bloomer, who played mostly for Derby County, with a brief period with Middlesbrough, obtained 23 caps against Scotland, Wales and Ireland.

He was regarded as one of the greatest inside forwards the game has ever seen.—Reuter.

LERIDA FIGHTING

Government Claims Progress

All Reserves Being Rushed To Tortosa

Barcelona, Yesterday.

An official communique admitting the collapse of Republican defences south of Tortosa, says that the administration in Republican territory controlled from Madrid will be under the general direction of General Miaja, under the tutelage of Barcelona.

It is claimed that in spite of the defeat south of Tortosa, the situation elsewhere is highly satisfactory and that in a determined counter-offensive in the Lerida sector, the Republicans have achieved important successes.

Meanwhile, all available reserves are being sent to Tortosa to meet the threat from the south.—Trans-Ocean.

TWO COLUMNS

Paris, Yesterday. Following yesterday's sensational successes, the Spanish insurgents to-day advanced along the Mediterranean coast in two columns.

One column advanced southwards and occupied Benicarlo, about 10 kilometres south of Vinarez, while the other, which is fully mechanised, entered Decona, north of Vinarez, on the road to Tortosa.

The Republican troops, according to press despatches, appear to be offering little resistance.

TORTOSA NEXT?

The insurgents expect to arrive at Tortosa this evening, and judging from their present rate of advance, this is quite feasible.

All the territory occupied by the insurgents had been evacuated on Wednesday by the civilian population, who took their goods and chattels with them.

Apparently the Government thought the main attack would be launched from the west on Tortosa, where they concentrated considerable numbers of troops, and the insurgent lightning attack south of Tortosa in the Morella sector, took the small Republican forces there by surprise.

On entering Vinarez to-day, the insurgents found only 400 out of the normal population of 13,000, still in the town.—Trans-Ocean.

WIDE CORRIDOR

Reuter's special correspondent with the Nationalist forces at Vinarez states that the corridor to the sea is ten miles wide and twenty-five miles long.

Despite the manifold inconveniences which the Republic is bound to suffer following its division into two, there seems to be no reason to expect resistance immediately to collapse.

They are thought to be still hoping for international intervention.

ANTI-TANK GUN

Meanwhile, after 75 hours' fighting, the Republicans have ceased to attack the Nationalist bridgehead at Balaguer.

The Republicans advanced over a corpse-strewn battlefield several times with as many as forty camouflaged tanks, but the insurgents waited until they were within 100 yards when they opened fire with a deadly anti-tank gun which is one of the most effective weapons of the war.

This battle has been hard and concentrated and losses on both sides have been very high.—Reuter.

CIVIL AVIATION SUBSIDY

London, Yesterday. The text is issued of a Government Bill increasing the maximum amount of subsidies which are paid annually to develop civil aviation from $1,500,000 to $3,000,000.—Reuter.

COST OF LIVING

London, Yesterday. The cost of living on April 1st was approximately 64% above the level of July, 1914, compared with 50% one month earlier and 51% on 1st April 1937.—British Wireless.

ELEPHANT TUG-O-WAR AT KANDY

Colombo, Yesterday.

A week's celebrations in honour of the Sinhalese National Day ended to-day with the final celebrations at Kandy, the ancient capital of the island.

The Governor of Ceylon, Sir Andrew Caldecott, attended today's ceremonies which included a tug-of-war between elephants.—Reuter.

HORE BELISHA IN MALTA

London, Yesterday.

The Minister for War, Mr. Hore-Belisha, is due to arrive in Malta from Naples by air to-day.

On his return journey he will call at Rome, where he will make a courtesy call on Signor Mussolini, and at Paris, where he will meet the French Premier, M. Daladier.—British Wireless.

FINE WEATHER FOR EASTER

London, Yesterday.

The Easter weather is rather colder, but there is no break in the dry, sunny spell which Britain has experienced in recent weeks and the holiday is being spent out of doors by the vast majority of people, although some roads were less congested than was expected. The railways report exceptionally heavy Easter holiday traffic.—British Wireless Service.

GAOL PROVISIONS TENDERS

Connected undoubtedly with the recent scandal exposed regarding the cost of feeding prisoners at Stanley Prison, a special provision is attached to the Government notification calling for tenders for the supply and delivery of provisions required at the Prison at Stanley and the Female Prison at Laichlok, for a period of six months from May 14.

Tenders may quote for all or any part of each schedule and Government reserves the right to accept all or any part of each tender.

ARSENAL YARD TO GO AT LAST

The long-projected elimination of the Arsenal Street-Queens Road East corner is at last to be tackled by the P.W.D.

Tenders are now being invited for the demolition of buildings in the Naval Arsenal Yard, which is the first step in the building of the road straight through from the region of Wellington Barracks to Gloucester Road.

A dance was held in the Great Hall of the Hong Kong University, in aid of medical relief work among the Chinese soldiers, last evening, organised by the Under-graduates Medical Association.

Imperial Airways have just announced that they plan to run Europe's fastest passenger and mail services with a new fleet of liners, capable of more than 200 m.p.h. with twenty two passengers and freight. Paris can be reached in 84 minutes and Cologne in 91 minutes. Photo shows—Captain O. P. Two Japanese Columns Now Entrapped

Hankow, Yesterday.

Violent fighting in southern Shantung, east of the Tientsin-Pukow railway, grew in intensity during the course of to-day's operations according to despatches reaching Hankow.

The Chinese forces attacking Yih sien and Tsao-chwang on the branch line to Taierschwang, have succeeded in tightening their grip.

All day yesterday, Yih sien was subjected to a fierce bombardment from the Chinese artillery. Part of the town is reported to be in flames. The Japanese are still offering stubborn resistance, apparently in the hope of the arrival of reinforcements.

FRANCO'S BREAKTHROUGH TO SEA HERALDED AS DECISIVE VICTORY OF WAR

Saragossa, Yesterday.

It is claimed here that the capture of Vinaroz and a long section of the Mediterranean coast, splitting the Republican forces into two, will prove to be the decisive factor in the Spanish civil war.

The sweep through to the coast achieves for General Franco the attainment of the primary objective of the heavy offensive on the Aragon front which opened on March 5.

According to the latest despatches from the front, immediately following the capture of Vinaroz and the occupation of Beccariz, some six miles to the south, the insurgent command rushed up strong detachments of troops in order to consolidate its hold upon the important road connecting up Barcelona and Valencia.

DEFENCE COLLAPSES

All overland communication between Madrid and Valencia, and between these places and Barcelona has been severed since late on Friday evening.

It is revealed that the Republican defence collapsed and that the occupation of Vinaroz was accomplished without resistance worth discussing. A small group of Republican militia sought to offer challenge in the streets of the town, but the stand was quickly broken by insurgent shock troops. Various tank detachments led the operations followed shortly afterwards by lorries carrying hundreds of further troops.—Trans-Ocean.

BENICARLO FALLS

Bilbao, Yesterday.
The occupation by insurgent troops of the coastal towns of Vinaroz and Benicarlo in the province of Castellon and the capture of the town of Alcanar and Utiel were officially confirmed here yesterday evening.

A Catalonian official statement says that these places have now been entirely cut off from the rest of Government Spain. The Mediterranean coast has been reached on a front 16 miles in extent.—Trans-Ocean.

Mr. S. H. Lord, second engineer of the Hai-Ching, has reported the loss of a pair of binoculars, valued at $84, from his cabin on Friday.

DAVAO SCARE UNQUESTIONABLY WARSHIPS

London, Yesterday.

The New York correspondent of "The Times," states that it is reported from Manila, that two United States destroyers have been ordered to leave Manila immediately for Davao, Mindanao Island, and that three Philippine Army aeroplanes have also been despatched to the same destination, to investigate the presence in Davao Bay, of 21 mysterious vessels, which the Collector of Customs in Davao is reported to have informed Manila by wireless, are unquestionably warships.—Reuter.

NEW CHIEF OF NAVAL AIR FORCES

London, Yesterday.

Vice-Admiral Sir Alexander Ramsay, hitherto Commander-in-Chief of the British Naval Forces in the East Indies, has been appointed assistant chief of naval staff in London, a position formerly held by Rear-Admiral John H. D. Cunningham.

It is also announced that a new title is to be adopted by Vice-Admiral Ramsay on succeeding Rear-Admiral Cunningham. It is "Fifth Sea Lord and Chief of Naval Air Forces."—Trans-Ocean.

In view of the constant arrival of fresh Japanese troops in northern Shantung, the Chinese are redoubling their efforts to break down the Japanese resistance at Yih sien and Tsao-chwang as it is fairly certain that these re-inforcements will be despatched to relieve the Japanese forces entrapped in these two towns.

MORE TROOPS LAND AT TSINGTAO

General Li Chung-jen and General Chen Chien have therefore sent further troops to southern Shantung in order to consolidate the Chinese positions there once the enemy resistance has definitely broken down.

It is reported that 3,000 Japanese troops which were sent from Tsingtao to Li Yi, arrived at Chuhshien yesterday. Included in new contingents landed in Tsingtao is a division formerly stationed in the Nanking region.

There has been a revival of fighting on all other fronts. In south-east Shansi, guerrillas are very active and are reported to have recaptured a number of villages.

HONAN FIGHTING

Fighting is also in progress near Wenhsien, on the northern bank of the Yellow River where it flows through northern Honan. Here the Chinese claim to have repulsed the Japanese after hand to hand engagements which lasted several hours and in which the Japanese are said to have lost 200 dead as well as large quantity of war materials.

In an artillery duel across the Yellow River near Tungkwan, however, the Japanese were able to claim advantage.

The Chinese forces have now started an offensive near Feng-chiu, north of the Yellow River.—Trans-Ocean.

MORE "SABOTAGE" ACCUSATIONS

Minsk, Yesterday.

Four engineers and an architect who have been engaged for five years building a huge power station here, are charged with having sabotaged construction and thereby caused the loss of Roubles 2,500,000 to the Soviet Government.

At the same time it is learned that two assistant ministers in the Ministry of the Machine Building Industry, Fokin and Solotov, have been removed from office and will be held to account for disorganisation of the armaments industry.—Trans-Ocean.

SHANGHAI SKATES TO ESCAPE WAR

Night Life Just As Hectic In Effort To Forget Troubles

FOODSTUFF PRICES RISE BY NEARLY TWO HUNDRED PER CENT.

(Our Own Correspondent)

SHANGHAI, YESTERDAY.

WITH BUSINESS VIRTUALLY AT A STAND-STILL, PRICES OF FOODSTUFFS UP 200%, AND THOUSANDS OF ARMED GUERRILLAS PROWLING OUTSIDE THE CITY LIMITS, SHANGHAI, PARIS OF THE EAST AND ERSTWHILE ONE OF THE WORLD'S GREAT MARTS, STILL GOES TO BED AT 5 A.M.

The night life, always hectic, is marked by a feverish gaiety; a desire to forget the past and live for the little hour that divides the uncertain future from the nerve racked present. Charity balls and other entertainments on behalf of the destitute, are brilliant functions with every ticket sold days in advance.

Though most of the first class night haunts punctually observe curfew and close at midnight, others less in the public eye remain open long after that hour. Citizens are allowed 30 minutes grace to reach their homes, and anyone on the streets after 12.30 a.m. is liable to be arrested.

ADDED ZEST

To the Shanghai reveler this gives an added zest to the evening's entertainment. Homeward bound curfew breakers nose their cars round corners, and if the street is clear of policemen, go flat out to the next.

The penalty for being caught used to be a couple of hours sewing sandbags, but may now mean a heavy fine.

This is due to the fact that gangsters have become increasingly numerous and bold, and scarcely a night passes without a hand grenade being thrown or an armed hold-up taking place.

NEW CRAZE

Oddly enough the latest craze, roller skating, has an innocuous sound. The Metropole Gardens, Lafayette Gardens, and the Ambassadors have installed skating rinks. Here, to the tune of the latest American numbers, old and young weave and whirl dizzy circles hour after hour.

The managements charge on a sliding scale; 45 cents for the first hour, 30 for the second, down to 10 cents after the fourth consecutive hour. Skates are at a premium, and a man combed the city yesterday for a pair without success.—Our Own Correspondent.

FRANCE ANXIOUS FOR ITALIAN SETTLEMENT

Paris, Yesterday.

It is understood that France desires to come to an understanding with Italy, similar to the Anglo-Italian Agreement, the first step towards which is likely to be the appointment of an Ambassador in Rome.

The beginning of Franco-Italian rapprochement was made with the signature in Rome yesterday of a new commercial agreement, re-establishing from May 1 normal commercial relations, subject to the control of a Mixed Commission composed of members of both governments.—Reuter.

Hankow, Yesterday.

As part of the Easter broadcast programme, General Chiang Kai-shek is broadcasting to-night over the central Kuomintang radio station upon the invitation of the Chinese National Christian Association on the subject "Why we believe in Jesus."

The Generalissimo is a devoted Christian whose recent decision to cancel the Government ban on compulsory religious education in Christian schools throughout China received widespread approval.—Reuter.

Swatow, Yesterday.

A large Japanese cruiser steamed to Chaoyang at ten o'clock this morning and opened up a broadside on the Chinese positions ashore.

Dr. Benes' Striking Plea For Better Relations With Germany

Prague, Yesterday.

A striking appeal for better relations between Czechoslovakia and Germany was made to-day by President Benes, when he gave an assurance that the Czechoslovakian Government was doing its best to provide a satisfactory solution of the minority problem.

At the same time, the Government announced the largest amnesty in the history of the country, covering almost every type of political prisoners. At least one thousand Germans will be freed as a result of the amnesty decree. They are to be released immediately.

President Benes stated that ultimate peace between nations was only possible if all countries were prepared to respect the integrity of their neighbours and refrain from interference, directly or indirectly, with their internal affairs.

He declared that Czechoslovakia would face its minority problem with foresight and courage.—Reuter.

CORRESPONDENCE

'A Pacifist Must Speak' Again

Sir.—Mr. Spreckley's article of March 27, "A Pacifist Must Speak" and Mr. L. J. Stevenson's letter dated March 30 have given me an attack of "cacothesia." Hence the following.

"The objects of War," says Mr. Stevenson, "are to obtain for the people waging it either Freedom, Justice or Peace."

The normal Englishman, Frenchman, German, Russian, Austrian, etc., etc., may have thought so in 1914 and I presume this is the belief of the Japanese and Chinese soldiers in 1938.

I would suggest that the object of war is merely an extension of the diplomatic policy of preservation of national lives and property in a difficult world.

War to preserve life and property sounds at first like a contradiction in terms. But after all, one's own nation may win the war, may derive some benefit from the peace and one may as an individual come through unscathed. Whereas at the present stage of world development a pacifist and self-sacrificing attitude on the part of a nation or an individual will simply invite attack and consequent destruction—a case of heads you win tails I lose.

Only a nation composed of individuals united in the strength of an intelligence, a determination and a moral character hitherto unknown in this world would have any hope of preserving their national consciousness in defeat at the hands of a conqueror to whom no armed resistance had been offered.

I hold that the majority of pacifists do not grasp the full sacrifices that their attitude entails just as most of the supporters of the League of Nations take little scientific interest in the causes of future wars with a view to remedying them.

The sale of manufactures and machinery to a primitive people with consequent industrialisation, increase of population and self-preservation urge to find in their turn overseas markets and spheres of influence, is one cause the effect of which can be seen under our noses.

Rapidly to force co-operation and a less primitive form of social activity on to the peoples of this world according to the gospel of the great God Trade, may in the long run lead to universal brotherhood and mercantile, financial and legal understanding; but in the short run the result is just as martial as other past missionary efforts.

This may be the chief cause of war at the present time. To me and to most people it is doubtful if there is a remedy; just as a few centuries earlier a remedy for the Protestant versus Catholic National disputes would have seemed equally doubtful.

Human intelligence will have to improve vastly before the ultimate problems of national existence and expansion can be solved other than by the easiest and ready to hand solution of war.

If the pacifist would renounce in times of peace the benefits derived from belonging to his particular nation he could with justice refuse to bear arms in time of war when called upon. Fair play demands that the ordinary individual should co-operate in defence of the nation in which he has enjoyed his living.

I am in complete agreement with Mr. Spreckley however, if it is his aim to show that victors are not always right, let alone successful, and that the aggressor may not be completely in the wrong. In short, that the causes of war do not lie on the surface to be attributed thoughtlessly to one specific nation or another but that they lie deep seated in commonly unapprehended world conditions.

I would add that the spectacle of a disunited Europe, in addition to being a disgrace to western culture and post war diplomacy, seems such a menace to the general well being that any methods of appeasement should be welcomed by the realist—the local realist in particular.

I endorse therefore Mr. Spreckley's slogan "hate off to Mr. Chamberlain." In Italy or Germany Mr. Spreckley's metaphorical hat would have been taken off for him.

PRIVATE FACES IN PUBLIC PLACES

"The Bride Wore"

"WEDDINGS—funerals—christenings—the petty round of small town news gathering—you'll soon lose your enthusiasm," the dark, nervous man with tired eyes, remarked wearily. We mixed him a whisky soda. "Don't be too sure. The quick, the romantic, the dread may be stereotype phrases in journalism, but not even a cliché can vitiate the dynamics of life. The fault, Brother Hack, lies not in the stars but in our newspapers which are full of the things people expect to find in newspapers and, ergo, damned dull."

THIS little piece of shop fitted through our mind when the young lady whose photograph you've just been admiring, asked our advice on how to fill in a long, buff coloured form. The document had been sent to her by a newspaper and related to her impending marriage. After enquiring the names of the parties and their respective parents, the questionnaire asked for particulars of the best man, the bridesmaids, the matron of honour, the officiating chaplain, the bride's wedding gown, her going away dress, the colour and composition of her bouquet, etc., etc.—all with a little blank space opposite each question, as if the most important event in a woman's life could be reduced to the norm of an income tax schedule.

In fact, the inquisition had been framed with the same exhaustive stupidity, and just as the wispy little men with foreray eyes and tight lips don't leave you room to explain that John's been sick all summer and the doctor's bills are driving you mad, so there was no space for the all important details of how the young lady had arrived at the altar stage, and not the least curiosity concerning her reactions on reaching that important place. Two questions to which the answers may or may not be interesting, but we submit, can hardly be any duller than last year's write up of Miss Smith's wedding suitably amended for this year's description of Miss Brown's nuptials.

ALL of which takes us back to the Garrison Town of Kiev on a May morning in the year 1908. In those days, the town was a pleasant place, the streets clean, well paved, the kerbs adorned with rows of young chestnut trees. On this particular morning, Kiev was dawning in the sunlight. The windows of the houses stood wide open, pillows and blankets hung over the sills for an airing, and every now and then busy housewives could be heard urging their maids to greater action. The freshly swilled cobblestones in the roadway glistened like blue sapphires and dazzled the eyes of Lieutenant Grigor Tereschenko, Znamouray

Infantry Regiment, as he hurried out of the barrack gates.

THE Lieutenant wore an all sitting dark blue tunic, and his silver shoulder straps embossed in gold with the number of his regiment, were tarnished and threadbare; a fact that for once failed to depress him. As he passed by the market hall that housed the Jew shops, a troop of Cossacks turned their heads with uplifted chins. The sootia's horses were splendidly matched bays, all carefully groomed, and the fine looking, bronzed riders bestraddled them like young Hercules. He acknowledged the salute and from wake. The eve of Tannenburo found them a few miles behind the lines, living in a German house in the occupied town of Margrabowo.

CAPTAIN Tereschenko spent his days and nights on the shell pitted railway that fed the advance base. Now and then he managed to snatch a brief hour with his family. On leaving them, he never failed to instruct his wife to leave the day she saw the trains all going one way. Always she nodded, and inwardly resolved that she would never leave without him. One day, the full thunder of the guns swelled into a roar.

dance halls, and the jobs that paid forty dollars a month for working twelve hours a day and expected you to entertain the manager in the evening. The struggle to live and keep your self respect, when you have no money, no country, and your friends are as poor as yourself.

ALEXANDRA Tereschenko has known these things, fought them, endured, and triumphed. She carries her charming head proudly and her clear eyes regard the world without bitterness. Gallant daughter of a gallant Officer, we wish her every joy that her forthcoming marriage to Mr. W. H. Tippet of Queensland next Sunday fortnight will bring. "What's that?" "Gracious, we had almost forgotten Dame Convention." On that happy day, the bride will be attired in a cream rose, lace gown and will carry a bouquet of tea roses.

Crossword

THE following little conundrum was given us the other day by a Mr. Hansen whose job it is to manipulate masses of figures. When his brain gets tired doing that, he relaxes by solving crosswords, which we imagine is a better way than taking it out of the wife or the servants. Unfortunately, it had the opposite effect on us. After fiddling with the thing for an hour, we had a first class row with the person who insisted on volunteering advice over our left shoulder. Truth compels us to admit that we didn't succeed in solving it then, and in the end we were compelled to entreat the solution from Mr. Hansen. The answer is on page 20, and don't be too mad with us.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

The "smoothest" story ever told is the one your skin will tell, if you make a daily rite of COLONIAL DAMES ALL-PURPOSE CREAM. And the truest story ever told is that at 30, you may say your age is "only 28", but your nose indicates the true state of affairs. By the time you're 35, it's a temptation to say you're 30, but you'll never be convincing, if lines have their way! At 40, it's a threat that denies your blithely claimed "35". Wrinkles, creases, flabby contours all call for rigid, nightly treatments. So be your age, girls, or else strive to look younger than your years.

And nothing helps your skin on the road to youth so much as a good-all-round cream that really cleanses and lubricates. That cream is ALL-PURPOSE. It gives dry skin lubrication... plus the "sun-shine" Vitamin D which your skin absorbs. Use faithfully and your looks will repay your care. At WATSON'S.

And if you wish to pull off any really successful coup in the clothes line... at the youngest prices in town... Esther refers you to MISS NAYLOR. For those snappy lines, abbreviated hems, detailed neck, shoulder and sleeves in dresses, make this shop your headquarters. At the moment, a limited number of cotton frocks can be had for a song... a group of dainty evening dresses in all the new styles are waiting your selection and artful hata galore. New shipment of afternoon and morning frocks expected on Tuesday, so make it a date.

Have you a soul for music? Do you yodel? Do you warble and trill, and make queer gurgling noises in the region of your epiglottis? Or do you just sing in your bath... because no one can get at you? Whatever you do, why strain your vocal chords and the family's temper when you can buy a Zenith 1938 radio to provide all the music your soul needs for a mere $69. Esther wishes to remind you that the VICTORIA RADIO SHOPPE, Peking Road, Kowloon, are holding a sale this month... which means, of course, that you have only a fortnight left in which to purchase a Zenith at that give-away price. Six tubes, AC/DC 110-220 volts, with standard broadcast and European long wave bands from 200 to 2,000 metres... suitable for use in both the Orient and Europe. And we thought we were past the age of miracles!

And having fitted you out with clothes, need Esther remind you that no frock, no matter how pretty, can make you stand out from the crowd unless it is worn over a faultless foundation, minus unsightly bulges, where bulges have no business to be, rolls, etc. etc. We suggest "Skippies" by Formitt, and ELITE STYLES in Queen's Road as the place to buy, since they are the only shop in town that stock them. Esther had a look at these "Skippies" and went all silly about them. They are grand little enemies of bulges, without boning, and without exaggeration. They keep silhouettes slim, squelch up-and-coming bumps, and make clothes fit like your Paris cousin's, without hindering movement one mite. In short, they're soft and cuddly-some, feel good and do just the right kind of gentle control job. In three styles... girdle, pantie-girdle and Girdleone. Formitt's "Thrill" brassieres lift, mold and separate to give the "just-right" bustline, too. On your way, my friends.

Miss Alexandra Tereschenko, who is to marry Mr. W. H. Tippet, of Queensland, next week.

sheer ebullience shouted after them: "Good Morning, Brothers." At this moment a tall, thin, man in a shabby frock coat emerged from a nearby house. Seeing him, the Lieutenant broke into a run. "Congratulations, Your Honour. A fine baby girl."

ALEXANDRA's childhood days were spent in garrison towns. Her father had married for love and having no means other than his pay, often found it difficult to make ends meet. Every morning, with Shira (her father's diminutive of Alexandra) trotting by her side, his wife would go to market with a basket, and returning, cook the meals aided by her husband's orderly. The rooms they lived in were often cold in winter and hot in summer, and the district selected for its cheapness. Not seldom were they placed in a financial quandary, when Grigor had to have a new tunic, or a regimental ball demanded a new gown. However, the love they bore one another survived these petty humiliations. Shira thrived, worshipped her mother, adored her father, and liked best to watch the soldiers of the barbarically splendid Cossack regiments, who delighted to make a pet of the little girl with the solemn hazel eyes and long brown pigtail.

JULY the 17th, 1914, found our Lieutenant a Captain of the Engineer Corps in the Manchurian Command. It would have been easy for him to have remained there, but his sense of personal loyalty to the Emperor, typical of the Russian Officer of the Imperial regime, and his patriotism demanded something more heroic than comfortable garrison post. He applied for a transfer and was Weak from child birth (Shira's sister was born a few days earlier), Mrs. Tereschenko hurried to the station. Numb with the incessant shelling, a cold fear clutching her heart, she waited for two days on the bomb scarred platform, her eyes never leaving the trains crammed with wounded and demoralised soldiers that were all going the same way. As the last of that never ending line chugged slowly past, a brother officer espied her, and jumping out, forcibly thrust her into his compartment. "Captain Tereschenko," he explained, "has been evacuated to hospital. In two hours the Uhlan will be in the town."

SHIRA remembers the journey perfectly. Her baby sister a few weeks old; the groans of the dying, the packed, sweating soldiers with sullen faces and leering eyes. How she and her mother dried the baby's napkins by pinning them round their bodies. How her father left the army, cured except for the tuberculosis that made him look so well, and retired to Siberia to farm chickens. How the villagers became suspicious, discovered that he was an ex-army officer, and drove them out.

HER father's death and her mother's marriage to Colonel Federoff with the figure of a swordsman and the Cross of St. George. The terrible Ice March across Lake Baikal where the water is so clear that you can see the skeletons of Donniken's men lying on the bottom. The typhus and the fur coats that moved without anyone inside them. The sanctuary of Harbin; the Russian Grammar School there, and the year she won the gold medal, except that you didn't get the medal, only a piece of paper saying that you

BRITISH AIR MINISTRY OFFICIALS GOING TO U.S. Purchase Of "Flying Fortresses" In Prospect

Washington Believed Likely To Give Consent

London, Yesterday.

It is disclosed that a number of experts of the British Air Ministry will sail for the United States next Wednesday to conduct negotiations with the American aircraft industry for the eventual delivery of a large number of bombing planes for the Royal Air Force. This report appears in the "Evening Standard" in connection with the announcement in the House of Commons that the British Government is seeking to expedite the completion of the air re-armament programme.

According to the "Evening Standard," the British Government desires to buy at least 500 planes of the latest American types and points out that the revised British air re-armament programme provides for 2,300 first line planes. Originally it was intended to bring the first line strength of the Royal Air Force to 1,750 planes, but this number is considered insufficient in view of the latest European political developments.

THE DIFFICULTIES

Certain difficulties are standing in the way of this purchase according to the "Daily Express."

Thus, the sale of American military planes to a foreign country must be sanctioned by Congress before exportation is allowed.

The American Government must, moreover, give a special permit for the latest type military planes to be sold to a foreign purchaser. The majority of types which are likely to appeal to British Air Ministry experts are still on the secret list and have not been released for sale abroad.

Burnt Toast Makes Diplomats

I READ the other day about a diplomat who, given a document to read, found he had left his spectacles at home. Instead of bursting into tears, or asking someone to read it to him, as lesser mortals like you or I would have done, he pretended to read words which were a complete blur to him, and carried out the discussions on it to a completely satisfactory conclusion.

The only weak spot in the story is the fact that the diplomat in question happened to be a Frenchman, and it is common knowledge that only the British become the great diplomats of the world.

Britain will always have the greatest diplomats, because she has always had the greatest train-leaves a permanent dent in the aforesaid pants.

The main drawback is that the diplomat himself has to do a lot of looking the other way, and as our foreign policy changes umpteen times every day, several of our leading plenipotentiaries have wrung their own necks trying to look the world in the face.

Others have been so careful to observe the ambassadorial adage of not letting your right ear hear what your mouth says that they have become completely deaf, and have had to retire into the country and become J.P.s.

One of the finest things about our diplomats is their touching faith in human nature. A fellow begins to become troublesome, and says his country is impoverished, and somebody ought to do something about it.

At once they arrange a few loans for him to help him through a lean time, and, if it happens to be bombs in which his poverty is most marked, we're always ready to sell him some for the money we've lent him.

Greatest discovery ever of British diplomats has been non-intervention. Only the vaguest threat of the application of non-intervention is now necessary to bring sharply to heel the lesser breeds without the licensing law.

Non-intervention is sweeping the country like wild-fire, especially in the homes in which it was born.

When a wife wakes in the middle of the night exclaiming "George, I'm sure there's a burglar in the house," and George just snuggles closer under the blankets, is that cowardice? No! Just non-intervention!

The only real handicap about these non-intervention affairs, such as that in Spain, is that some hot-headed partisans will always make the absurd, but embarrassing, suggestion that non-intervention should apply to both sides.

By HOWARD CULPIN

ing schools, her homes. Leathery bacon and eggs, incessant, underdone potatoes, the burnt toast of generations, have trained the men of Britain in the gentle art of discombing.

Is there one great British diplomat who did not begin his career by saying to his wife, "Of course, there's nothing wrong with the food, but I just don't feel hungry to-day?"

The next lesson in diplomacy comes when he meets that blonde from the second row of the chorus, and phones his wife to say he is detained at the office by an important conference with Peroxide Products.

Everyone knows that the French don't have any home life, so how can that story of the French diplomat be true?

Diplomacy can be summed up as the art of persuading the other chap to look the other way while you sneak up behind him and administer a sock in the pants that

BRITAIN'S PART IN THE FRENCH POLITICAL CRISIS

Credited With Influencing Daladier's Rise

Germany Watches With Close Attention

Berlin, Yesterday.

Germany is following developments in France with the closest attention which for the moment is primarily focussed on those parts of the French Government declaration dealing with military affairs and hinting at a new trend in foreign policy.

The newspapers have refrained for the most part from commenting on the latest French political developments.

An exception is provided by the "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung," which credits M. Edouard Daladier, the new French Premier, with having gained a striking initial success.

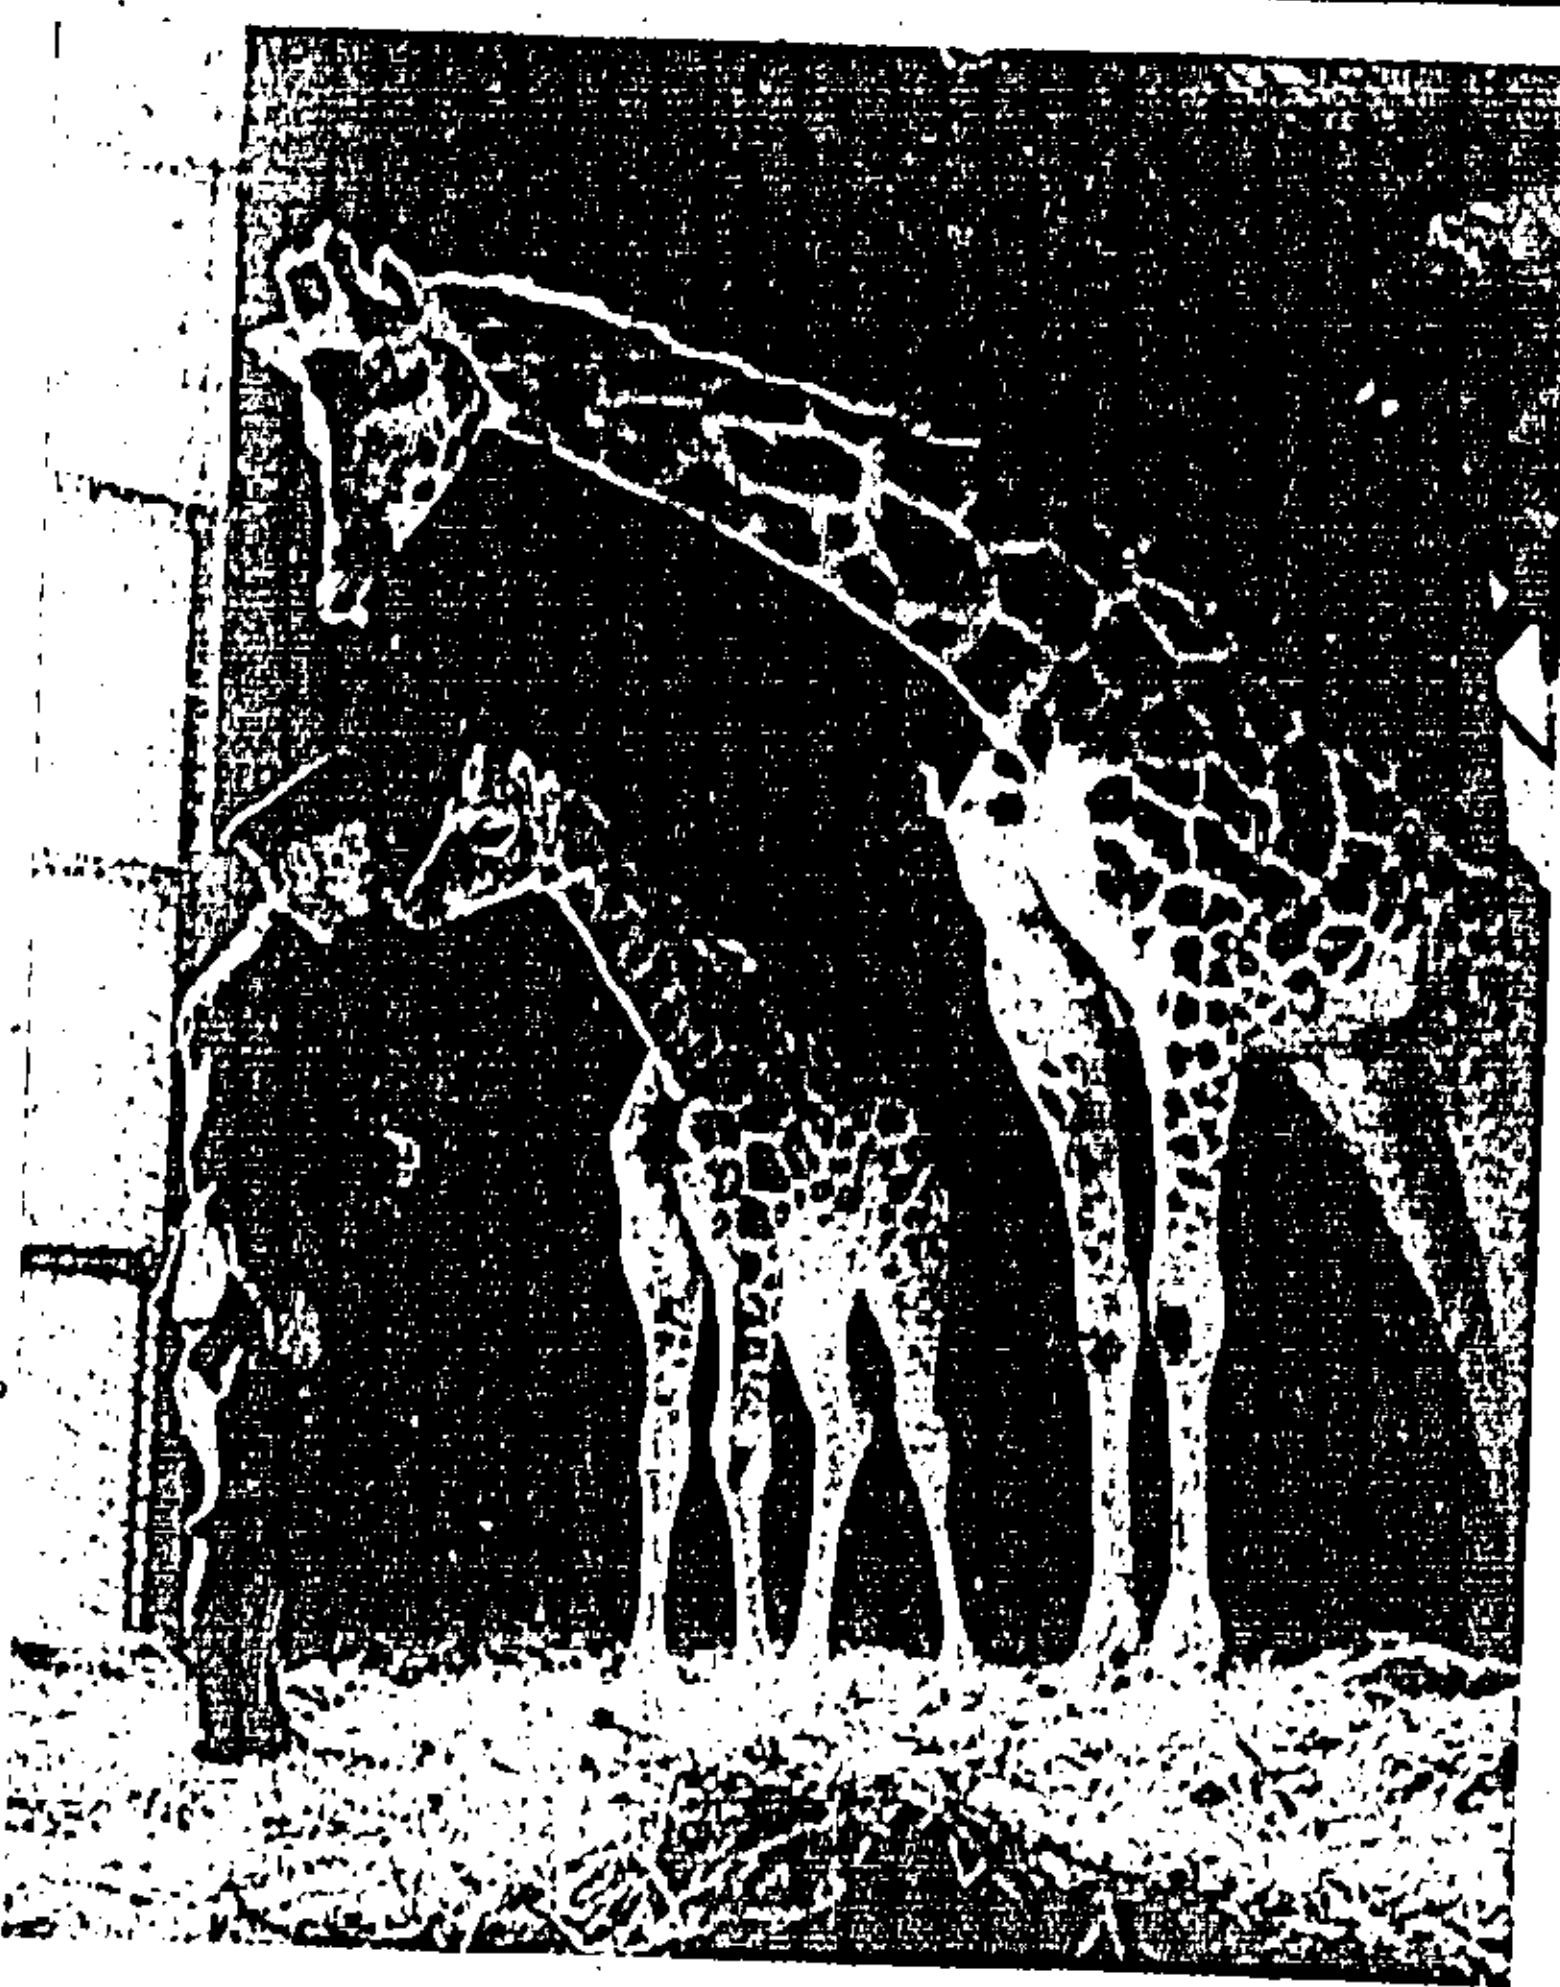

This is ascribed by the paper to Great Britain, the paper claims, saying that the British have never attempted to hide their annoyance at the way in which one French crisis follows the other, and the English press has indulged in some plain speaking.

Members of the House of Commons, the paper states, were recently sent to Paris to discuss matters with French party leaders from the extreme Left to the extreme Right.

IN BACK WATER
M. Daladier, it is said in Berlin, scored his biggest hit when he pointed out that France had allowed herself to drift into the back-water of political developments in Europe.

These words, says the German commentary, bear the imprint of events in the German as also of the Anglo-Italian understanding, and indicate that there is a growing demand for immediate action to prevent French political influence from being excluded from the Mediterranean. — Trans-Ocean.

HAPSBURG'S WEDDING: FAMILY BREACH

Budapest, Yesterday.

Archduke Albrecht of Hapsburg has issued a statement to the Hungarian press saying that he has informed Admiral Horthy, the Hungarian Regent, of his intention to contract, in the near future, a marriage with Catharine Bosky von Felsobanya.

The statement says: "As a Hungarian citizen I recognise only Hungarian laws and no longer recognise the obsolete laws of the Hapsburg family."

The declaration is interesting in that it signifies an open breach with the Hapsburg tradition, which prescribes that all members of the family intending marriage should first obtain the consent of the head of the family.

Head of the family to-day is the pretender to the throne, Archduke Otto. — Trans-Ocean.

GERMAN WHALER DISASTER IN CANARIES

Hamburg, Yesterday.

The German whaler "Sued 6," returning from the Antarctic, capsized and foundered off the Canary Islands yesterday afternoon.

One of the fourteen members of the crew is reported to have been drowned. — Trans-Ocean.

NEW CZECH MINISTER

Prague, Yesterday.

The Czech Government has appointed Dr. Arthur Pacak as new Minister to The Hague. — Trans-Ocean.

PROFESSOR THIENEMANN PASSES

Koenigsberg, Yesterday.

Germany's famous "bird professor," Dr. Thienemann, has died at the age of 75.

Founder of the famous bird sanctuary at Rossitten, in East Prussia, the Professor enjoyed an international reputation. — Trans-Ocean.

BLOOD TESTS FOR PARENTAGE DISPUTES

Berlin, Yesterday.

Recourse to the method of blood test for determining parentage and hence the nationality of the child, in any case of dispute, is made necessary by a new German law promulgated yesterday.

The same law stipulates that although German law prohibits marriage of a brother-in-law with a sister-in-law, and although in principle this will continue to be upheld in the interest of the ethics of family life, dispensations may be obtained under certain circumstances.

As regards the status of so-called "stateless persons," the new law prescribes that in determining the status of a "stateless" person, the deciding factors will without exception be the laws of the country in which the person is domiciled. — Trans-Ocean.

THREE POWER NAVAL TALKS PROGRESSING

London, Yesterday.

The three-power negotiations between Britain, France and the United States which started on Tuesday have, according to "The Times," resulted in certain progress, in as much as the representatives of the three powers have decided, as had long been foreshadowed, to increase the tonnage limit.

"The Times" declares that the situation now is that Britain plans the building of 42,000-ton battleships, and that the United States, according to the announcement made earlier, has already decided to do so.

France, however, as far as is known, has no intention of going beyond the 35,000-ton limit. — Trans-Ocean.

The Art Of The Dance Throughout The Nations

SINCE the coming of the twentieth century, the world has passed through a great upheaval, and the traditions of the past have been shaken to their foundations. In the midst of this struggle for re-birth, a great deal of interest has centred round the arts, particularly dancing. From an international point of view, this is all to the good. Dancing has only one language, understandable by all. Because it must be expressed through the medium of the human body, it is affected much more strongly than any other art by the moral and spiritual outlook of a nation.

During the golden period of fifth-century Greece, the dance reached its highest point of physical and intellectual expression. No nation has ever yet surpassed the Greek ideal of the beauty of the human form. Aware that the actions of the body reflect upon the soul, the Greeks practised only the best types of movement. In all athletics, symmetry of form, restraint, simplicity, and purity of style counted for more than strength. This controlled sense of balance and order has been handed down to posterity as the finest essence of great art.

Indebtedness To Rome

Although the dance owes so much to Greece, it must not be forgotten that it is indebted to Rome for the art of pantomime, which was brought to perfection during the reign of the Emperor Augustus. Every movement rhythmically executed was looked upon by the Romans as a dance.

the march of warriors, slaves singing at their oars in the galleys, birth, marriage, death—all the crises of life—were depicted with a realism which, in due course, became so licentious that, at the advent of Christianity, dancing was forbidden.

This was a great mistake, for dancing is a quick and subtle reflection of the soul of a nation, and, like a reflection, is the result, not the cause, of the life of its people. Dancing never yet made an age decadent, but a decadent age has always corrupted the dance. Given freedom, therefore, to express what it finds, dancing is a direct indication of a nation's weakness or strength.

Writing On The Wall

The so-called jazz dancing of America is much more suitable to the mentality of the coloured man than the white; yet the average white man of this age prefers it to any other form of dance—is this the writing on the wall?

It is a curious and little-known fact that the dance of Spain is far nearer to the Greek ideal than any other. The early religious life of the people of Crete formed the root of the Hellenic dance. It is interesting to note that the Cretians worshipped the Bull and that they used castanets, while the women were remarkable for their swaying hips and proud carriage. All the poses of Tanagra figures, particularly the curious spiral turn, with back-flung head and arched body, can be paralleled in Spain's most famous dance, Las Sevillanas.

Few Anglo-Saxons realise the gulf that divide the dancing of Spain from the rest of Europe. In British countries dancing is an academical art. In Spain it is a natural expression of the life and character of the people.

Dances From Spain

Spain's most famous dances are Jota, Aragonese, and Las Sevillanas. Jota is an extremely showy dance; its quick, intricate movements, bordering at times on the grotesque, suggest the angular grace of Gothic spires. Sevillanas, full of southern languor and flowing curves, brings to mind the suave outlines of a mosque.

Sevillanas is the epitome of the classic dance of Spain. Its seemingly quiet and subtle movements have in them a provocative allure that works upon the senses like alchemy. The accumulating intricacy of each succeeding copla is so artfully designed that as the dance progresses it seems to rise in one sublime sweep from the lyric to the epic. It has, one feels with a tightening of the throat, a deep spiritual significance; it expresses allegorically life and love and death; it is a blend of the wine and flowers and latent tragedy of Spain, shadowed still by the dark beauty of the invading Arab.

Thanks to the influence of Russian Ballet, the Slavonic dances are much better known than those of Spain—the colour and mystery of Asia, spiced with certain Tartar elements, lends them a fierce and sombre beauty. The Polish is characteristic of a country which unites Oriental splendour with the proud spirit of an independent Western race—until a few years ago it was performed with weapons, which added greatly to its barbaric effect. The Czechs and Austrians are also great votaries of the dance—experts say that, although the dances of Poland and Russia are the most poetic, those of Bohemia are more numerous and varied.

France, the home of ballet and all things appertaining to beauty and art, might be expected to abound in rich national dances. Such, however, is not the case. The most characteristic folk dances are the Breton and Bourree, neither of which is particularly spectacular. The Gavotte and Minuet were not national but Court dances, and were only used in the ballroom. Nothing of the kind has survived amongst the mass of the people except a certain grace in bowing and dropping curtseys.

Sailors' Hornpipe

There is a certain similarity between Dutch and English dancing. The Dutch, being a race of sailors, have a Matelot dance, not unlike our hornpipe, but it must be performed in sabots, and, instead of the arms being crossed on the chest, they are folded behind.

In referring to Scottish dancing, a critic once said that it was as sharp and exhilarating as Highland whisky. Spirit in every sense of the word is a most important factor to the Scot! Not everybody knows that the position of the arms in Highland dancing (with the arm raised to the side, never above the head, and the fingers curved above the biceps) is the outcome of a fencing position. The Scots were always great swordsmen.

Irish jigs and reels occupy themselves mostly with the feet. The shades of meaning produced with their musical patter are like a series of subtle epigrams directed to the eye. Irish dancing and Irish wit trip gracefully together.

Although the Chinese show little interest in dancing to-day, the oldest ballet known was held there over thirty centuries ago, and has been described by Confucius. Two special seasons called for the dance in ancient China—the winter solstice, when heaven was worshipped, and the summer solstice, when the earth was propitiated with sacrificial dances. Dancing masters were highly honoured, and belonged to the second class of mandarins. An old Chinese maxim runs, "One may judge a king by the state of dancing during his reign."

Mainly about WOMEN

"LIKE Queen Victoria, we want to be good. But not all the time, please, because one gets tired. And, of course, it is very gratifying to be kind. . . ." So writes Naomi Mitchison with that queer mixture of naivety, subtlety, and self-consciousness which make her one of the most interesting women novelists of our time. In "The Moral Basis of Politics," however, she has deserted fiction, and given us instead a series of reflections upon the moral problems of the middle classes. It is a queer book, full of the doubts and sensibilities and beliefs of a mind which cannot rest content with either art or thought or action, but fumbles tenderly for a faith which will unify all three.

I don't think she has found what she is looking for, but her search, as she describes it, can teach us more than any cast-iron creed. Her very uncertainty, and inconsistency, and even the frequent obscurity of her style, all mirror the plight of many other minds beside her own. Adrift with her, we seem to float across the uneasy sea of English public opinion in the making. For, despite her intense individuality, she is artist enough to universalise her private troubles until they become the troubles of an epoch.

Like many other professional people, Naomi Mitchison underwent a conversion to Socialism in 1931; and the growth of Fascism has made her realise even more clearly the relevance of politics to her life. Political converts are dangerous people, firstly because they are often dogmatic in their theories, and, secondly, because they hope to find in the political party which they join a religious fellowship and a tense exaltation to match their own fervour. Disillusion follows, and too often they flit from party to party querulously complaining that all politicians are unworthy creatures.

The reason for this is simple. The middle-class convert hopes to find the whole of morality in a single party; he is a Totalitarian in his claims and identifies the party programme with the new dispensation, the party members with its apostles. No wonder the Labour Party seems a bit humdrum.

"The Moral Basis of Politics" is an attempt to think a way through this disillusionment; to see politics as it is without losing altogether the ideals of conversion. Mrs. Mitchison tries to show that Socialism can be at the same time the gospel of Christianity and also the policy of a political party; that the Christian can and must "go political" without sacrificing the humanity of this creed.

For this reason her discussion centres first round the problem of "force" (how can anyone who believes in love and kindness be willing to do violence to his fellow-men?) and, secondly, round the problems of class and nation (how can anyone who believes in the Kingdom of God feel loyalty to rival mundane groups?). These problems are tackled in a refreshingly unacademic style. Instead of an abstract argument, we are given the personal difficulties and experiences of an intensely honest, worried woman who desperately wants to be good but is not sure how to be. Politicians would do well to read Mrs. Mitchison because she sees politics in a peculiarly English way.

THE ART OF MAKE-UP: NO. 6

Juvenile Or Straight Make-Up

GIPSIES are a wandering race, and supposed to be of Hindu Origin. They are scattered all over the world and although of the same origin, their mode of dress and customs vary. The Indian Gipsies wear a head-dress very much similar to the one shown in the picture, and have large rings, made of brass, to adorn their ears. (Curtain rings have done the trick for me.) Some of them are fair, have regular features, and fairly large eyes. They believe in scanty clothes and live a care-free life.

This sort of Make-Up is called JUVENILE or STRAIGHT Make-Up, and although simple, requires very careful attention. A Juvenile Make-Up is meant for a juvenile lead, who has got to take every care to look his best. His Make-Up should be flawless. Some amateurs, when made-up, look like dolls; remember, you have got to look human, unless you are playing King Kong, Mr. Hyde or the like. Hence extreme care is imperative.

Strange though it may seem, it is not necessary that a Juvenile

BY VICTOR S. MAMAK

Lead should possess a faultless face. If he is a good actor, his facial faults can be removed by Make-Up just as easily as playing a game of cards. For instance, small eyes can be made to look large and beautiful. A crooked nose can be shown straight and befitting; a very long nose can be subdued; a weak chin will look firm and strong with the help of a few tricks with the grease paint. It is really amazing and almost incredible but true what Make-Up can do and the deeper you go into the study of this art, the more interesting it becomes.

The amateurs interested in stage work may find this article interesting and useful as it describes Straight Make-Up which is mostly used. I do not profess to be an authority on this Art, but my suggestions, if followed carefully, will produce satisfactory results.

If your beard grows rapidly see that you are freshly shaven, as the points will not blend smoothly over stubble.

Apply cold cream liberally to the face and neck, covering the entire surface of the latter including the nape, and well below the collar line.

After the pores are well filled remove all the superfluous cream with a soft towel, leaving too much on will cause perspiration to seep through the make-up in a short time. Rub until the skin is not too shiny.

Take a stick of Juvenile paint, which is numbered 3 in Leichen's, and make streaks on either cheek, down the nose, across the chin, on the forehead directly over the eye-brows and about the neck.

With the fingers blend all this paint together until a smooth even surface develops. All the flesh about the eyes, nose and mouth must be evenly covered. If tiny holes are left through which the skin is exposed, the

This is one of the watercolours, entitled "Waterfront," by Luis Chan, recently acquired by His Excellency the Governor, Sir Geoffrey Northcote. It will be recalled that His Excellency recently attended the At Home given by the H. K. Working Artists' Guild at Mr. John Locke's studio, and it was during this visit that Sir Geoffrey acquired a few watercolours by Mr. Luis Chan.

JUVENILE OR STRAIGHT MAKE-UP

(Continued from Page 8) result will be a spotted make-up after the powder is applied. Be sure that the ear is lightly covered with grease paint; colour also be applied over the temporal bone, i.e., the space behind the ear; this is quite as important as painting the back of the neck.

For cheeks that are sunken, blend in some foundation grease paint a shade lighter than your juvenile stick; treat hollows and circles under the eyes in the same manner.

Blend in some wet rouge on the cheeks; if the face be broad, keep the brightest spot near the nose; if thin, place most of the colour back in the cheeks, blending forward toward the nose and up over the cheek bones. Run a little rouge under the eyebrows. No one should be able to tell where the rouge fades into your foundation; if this is perceptible you are poorly made-up. On the other hand too much rouge on a man's face is quite as bad; there should be just enough to make the actor look normally healthy. The lobe of the ear and the outer edge should have a coating of rouge.

Sports Chatter

I have been told that Henry Chan, who played for South China in the Tennis League last season, will be turning out this year for Kowloon Fong. His brother Albert, however, who partnered him, will remain with South China, contrary to previous reports.

Miss Marie Smith, Interport and "Y" Ladies' hockey forward, tells me that she hopes to keep fit during the summer by playing golf.

H. Brokenshire, K.C.C. cricketer, met with a nasty accident a short while ago and sustained a fracture of the wrist.

J. T. K. Gilchrist, Hong Kong Hockey Club junior player, is leaving for Home in the Rawalpindi at the end of this month. He will be away for about nine months.

L. A. Oppenheim, former University and Kowloon Cricket Club tennis player, has returned to the Colony after a prolonged absence.

I was interested last week to meet J. Hunter, former H.K.C.C. stumper, who is on a holiday visit to the Colony. Hunter, now resident in Manila, is spending a short vacation in order to escape, temporarily, the trying climate in the Philippines.

C. C. Ma, one of the most prominent athletes at the University, was unfortunate to be unable to take part in the annual athletic meeting. Whilst practising pole vaulting a short while ago, he fell heavily and sustained a fracture of the arm.

Prominent absentees from the University annual athletic meeting this year were the Misses Joyce Anderson and Phyllis Grose, who were the outstanding competitors in the ladies' events last year. I understand that they are under medical advice to refrain from participating.

E. H. P. White, one of the original members of the St. Andrew's hockey team which met with such success in the Matak Hockey Tournament several years ago, is shortly leaving for the United Kingdom via America on six months furlough.

Mrs. M. Vessoupa, who at the beginning of the Winter gave every promise of developing into a useful half-back in the St. Andrew's Ladies' Brawn Cup team, has just recovered from an attack of pleurisy.

Local cricketers will be interested to learn that the current issue of Wisden's Cricket Almanack, which is just to hand, reveals that L. D. E. Holland-Martin, who played here regularly for the Navy in the 1936-7 season, played in several representative matches at Lord's last Summer. Among other games, he represented Combined Services behind the stumps against the New Zealanders.

The Billiards Handicap competition at the Civil Service Cricket Club has been completed, J. A. Bendall (—80) beating A. W. Grimitt (—150) in the Final. The Snooker Handicap competition was won by M. S. Rakusen (—45), who beat C. Strange (—45) in the Final.

After being without a bathing pavilion throughout last Summer, the Chinese Young Men's Christian Association's new building at Lai-chikok beach is nearing completion, and is expected to be ready for use at the end of this month.

The European Y.M.C.A. Swimming Section will hold their annual meeting next Wednesday in the West Lounge, commencing at 5.45 p.m., when the season's prospects and new officials to be elected will form the main items on the agenda. I believe that the "Y" will concentrate mainly on water-polo this season, although one or two galas are likely to be held.

Civil Service Cricket Club are entering two teams in the Lawn Tennis League this season, in the "B" and "D" Divisions.

Norman Lee, last year's most successful swimmer, has already commenced training in preparation for the defence of his several swimming titles. He will be strongly opposed this season as Wilfred Lawrence, and R. Norman will be among the challengers.

The Selection of the Fowler brothers, G.H. and S.A. to represent Hong Kong against Macao in the Interport hockey series recalls to my mind other instances where brothers have played in the same team in Interports, whether they were in hockey, swimming or football. These are: Tennis (M. K. and M. W. Lo v. Shanghai, 1932); Cricket (E. C. and F. F. Fincher v. Shanghai, 1933); Football (A. V. and R. T. Gosano v. Shanghai, 1930, 1934 and 1935); Swimming (A. A. and E. B. da Roza v. Shanghai and Tientsin, 1934; C. E. and L. Roza-Pereira v. Shanghai and Tientsin in 1931 and 1933); Hockey (G. H. and S. A. Fowler v. Macao, 1938; E. V. and W. A. Reed v. Macao, 1934).

By the Judge

E. B. Tensdale, who is coming out to join the Hong Kong Civil Service next autumn, is a well-known athlete at Home and should figure prominently at local sports meetings.

Flt. Lt. Wallace, who is the Colony's right-back for today's Interport hockey match against Macao, is the first member of the Royal Air Force to secure Interport recognition in any sport in the Colony.

H. G. "Bert" Lange, one of the European Y.M.C.A.'s mainstays in their swimming section, has left the Colony on leave. Travelling to Germany via Canada and America, he is due back in five months.

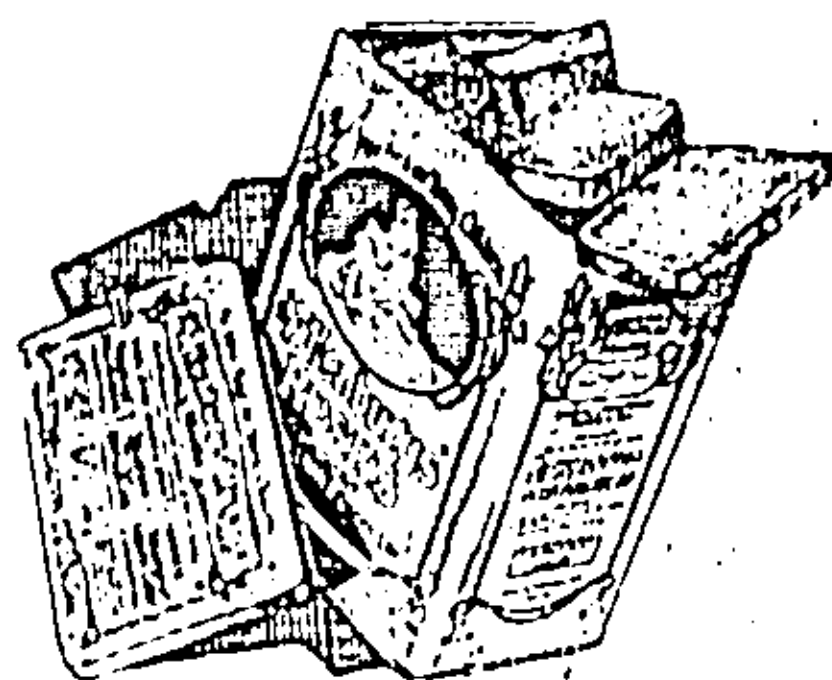

W. A. Reed, above, will be seen in action for the Colony Interport hockey team against Macao on the Navy ground to-day.

Lee Kuong-wing, holder of the Shanghai Billiards Championship for several years, has arrived in the Colony. He holds the record break of 250 in Shanghai. Lee is also a good footballer and played for the Lok Hwa Club at centre-forward.

In order to encourage new players, the Committee of the lawn bowls section of the Taikoo Docks Recreation Club have requested older and more experienced players to each take a novice under their personal instruction.

Taikoo Docks Recreation Club will be strengthened this season by the return of D. Munroe, who has not played for several seasons, but J. C. Chalmers and W. Cunningham will be surely missed. Both will be proceeding on Home leave before the season starts.

J. M. Pinto, Kowloon Indian Tennis Club hockey player, and Portuguese international player, left for Goa on holiday recently.

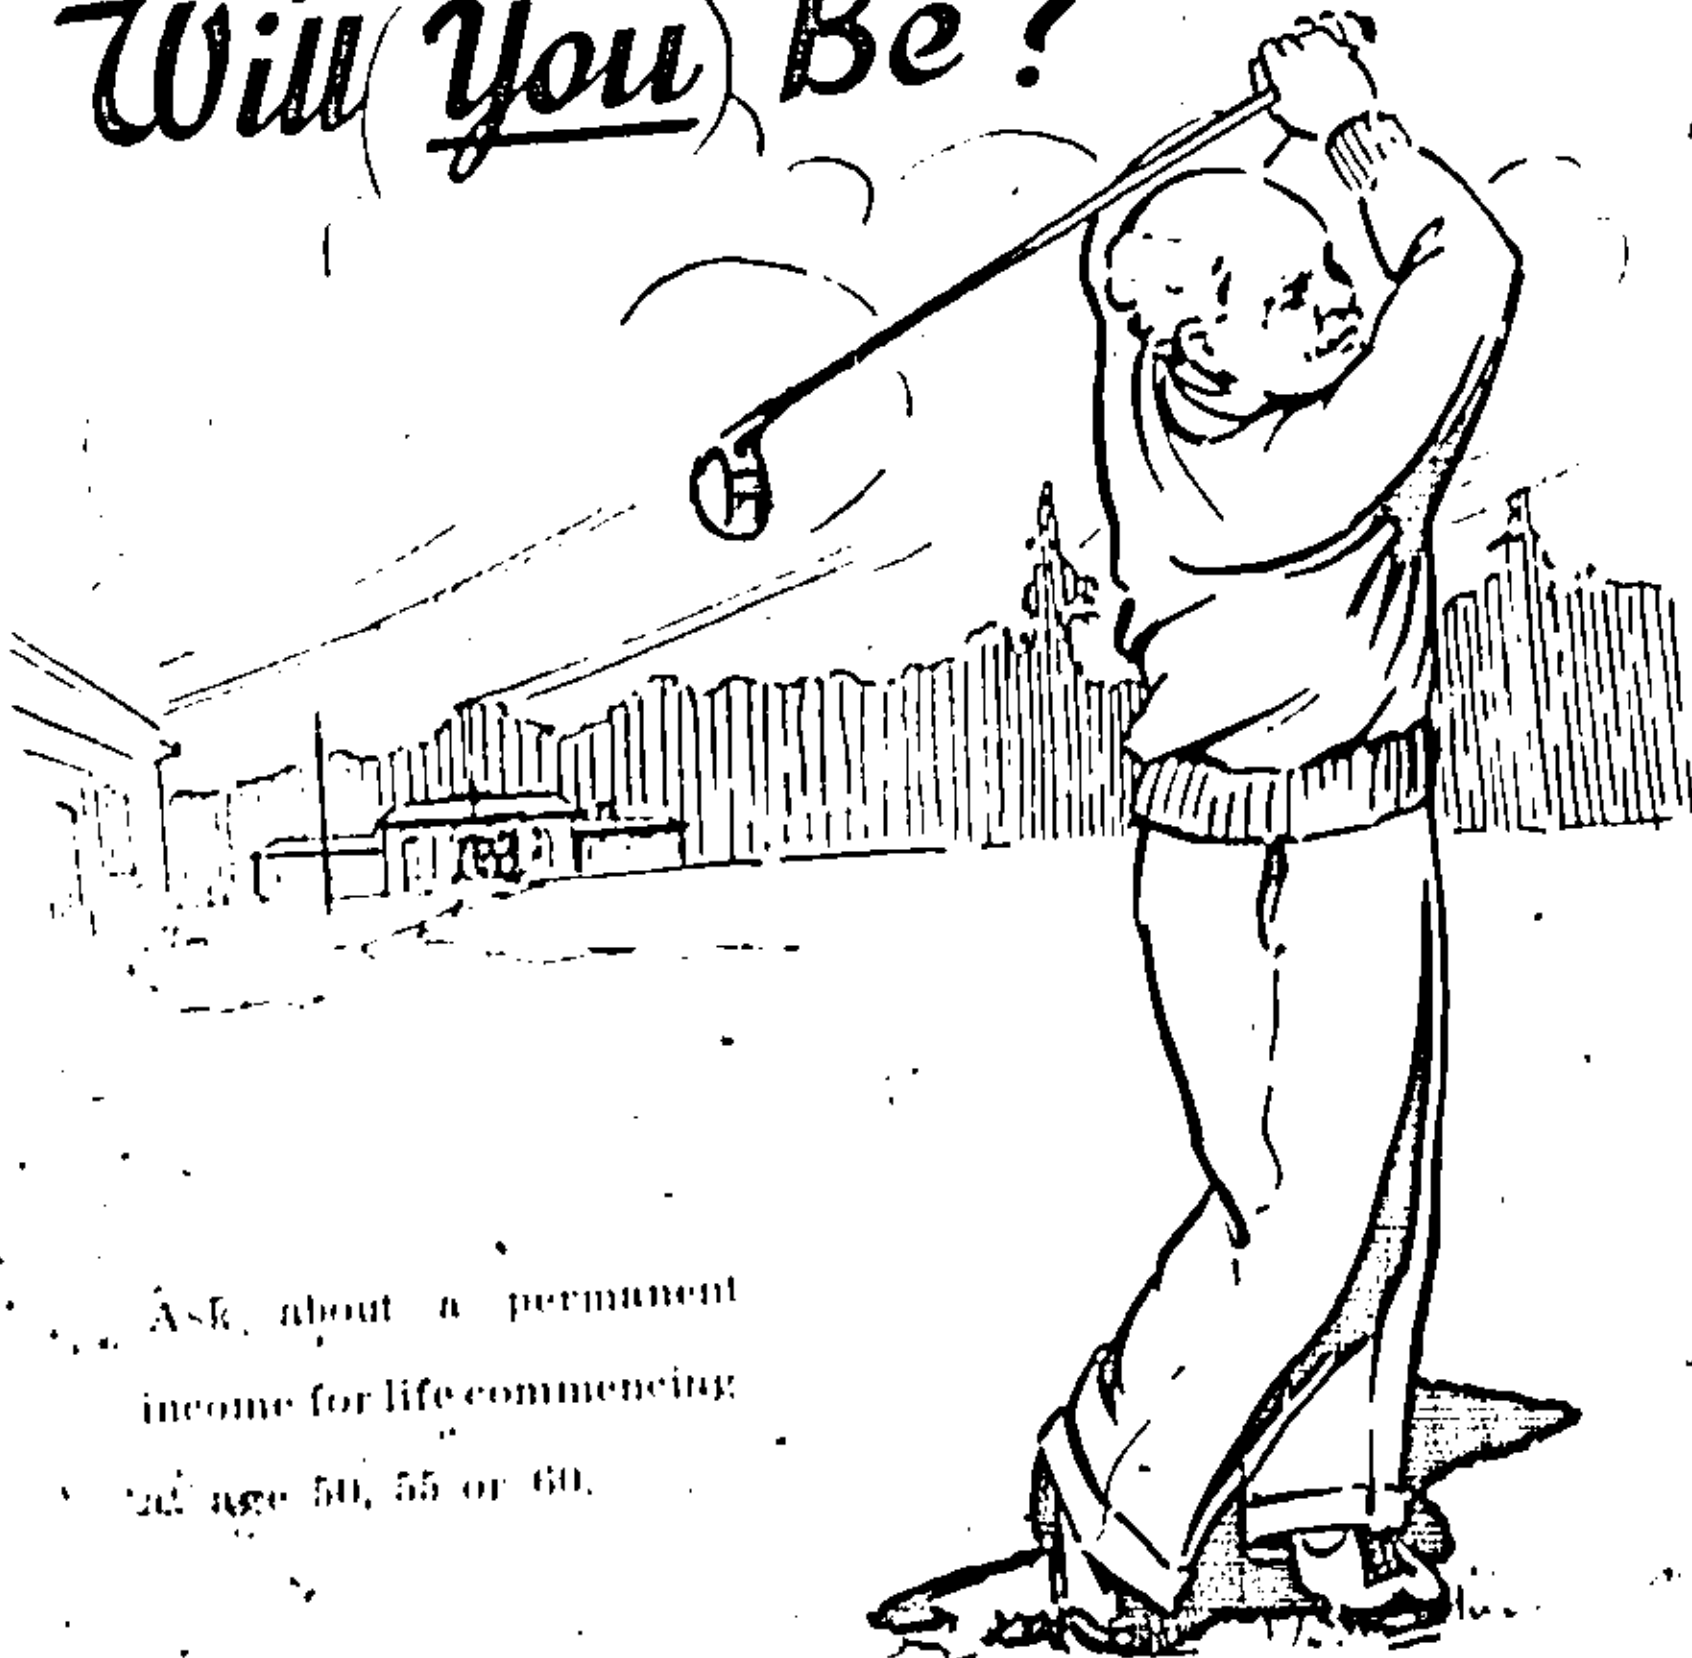

The Stonecutters' Wireless Telegraph Football Club are making efforts to be included in the Third Division of the Hong Kong Football League. In a game recently against 24th R.A., runners up in the Kowloon Section of the Third Division, and winners of the Battery Cup, they won by four clear goals.

It is understood that Tam Kung-pak, South China Athletic Association all-round footballer, will be playing for Macao in the forthcoming soccer Interport.

F. Simonsen, who would have managed the Volunteer Baseball Team this season, left for Shanghai on business on the s.s. Potsdam and will be away for about two months.

Hsu King-shing, Kowloon Chinese forward, who played with such success for China in the "Sunday Herald" International Charity Cup Final, started his football in Shanghai and figured prominently in the First Division there.

KING TO SLEEP IN NAPOLEON'S BED

Marie Antoinette's Bed Placed In Queen's Apartments

Pale Green Motif Of Decoration

London, Yesterday.

When the King goes to Paris in June he will sleep at the Quai d'Orsay, the French Foreign Office, in a bed that was used by the great Napoleon.

The Queen's apartments have been furnished with national treasures from the Chateau of Versailles. The bed belonged to Marie Antoinette, Louis XVI's Queen.

Her Majesty's private apartments, three rooms on the first floor under the rotunda, will be decorated in a pale green which she herself chose.

The carpets will be of a soft grey-green shade, and the ceiling will be white and gold.

The bathroom will be in the same pale green as the bedroom, with a bath of silver mosaic.

Adjoining the Queen's apartments will be three rooms for her ladies-in-waiting. The colour scheme there will be blue—"because blue suits every woman," explained the official entrusted with the decorations.

One of these rooms was the bedroom of M. Aristide Briand, the famous French Foreign Minister, whose name has lost none of its lustre in the eyes of posterity because of his belief that a disarmed Europe could live in peace.

GOLD MOSAIC BATH

The King's apartments will contain Empire furniture. The bathroom will have black walls and a bath of gold mosaic.

All the private apartments of their Majesties will look on to the garden of the Foreign Office, which is entirely enclosed and is not overlooked by any other building.

A spacious lawn stretches before their view, and in June there will be a riot of roses.

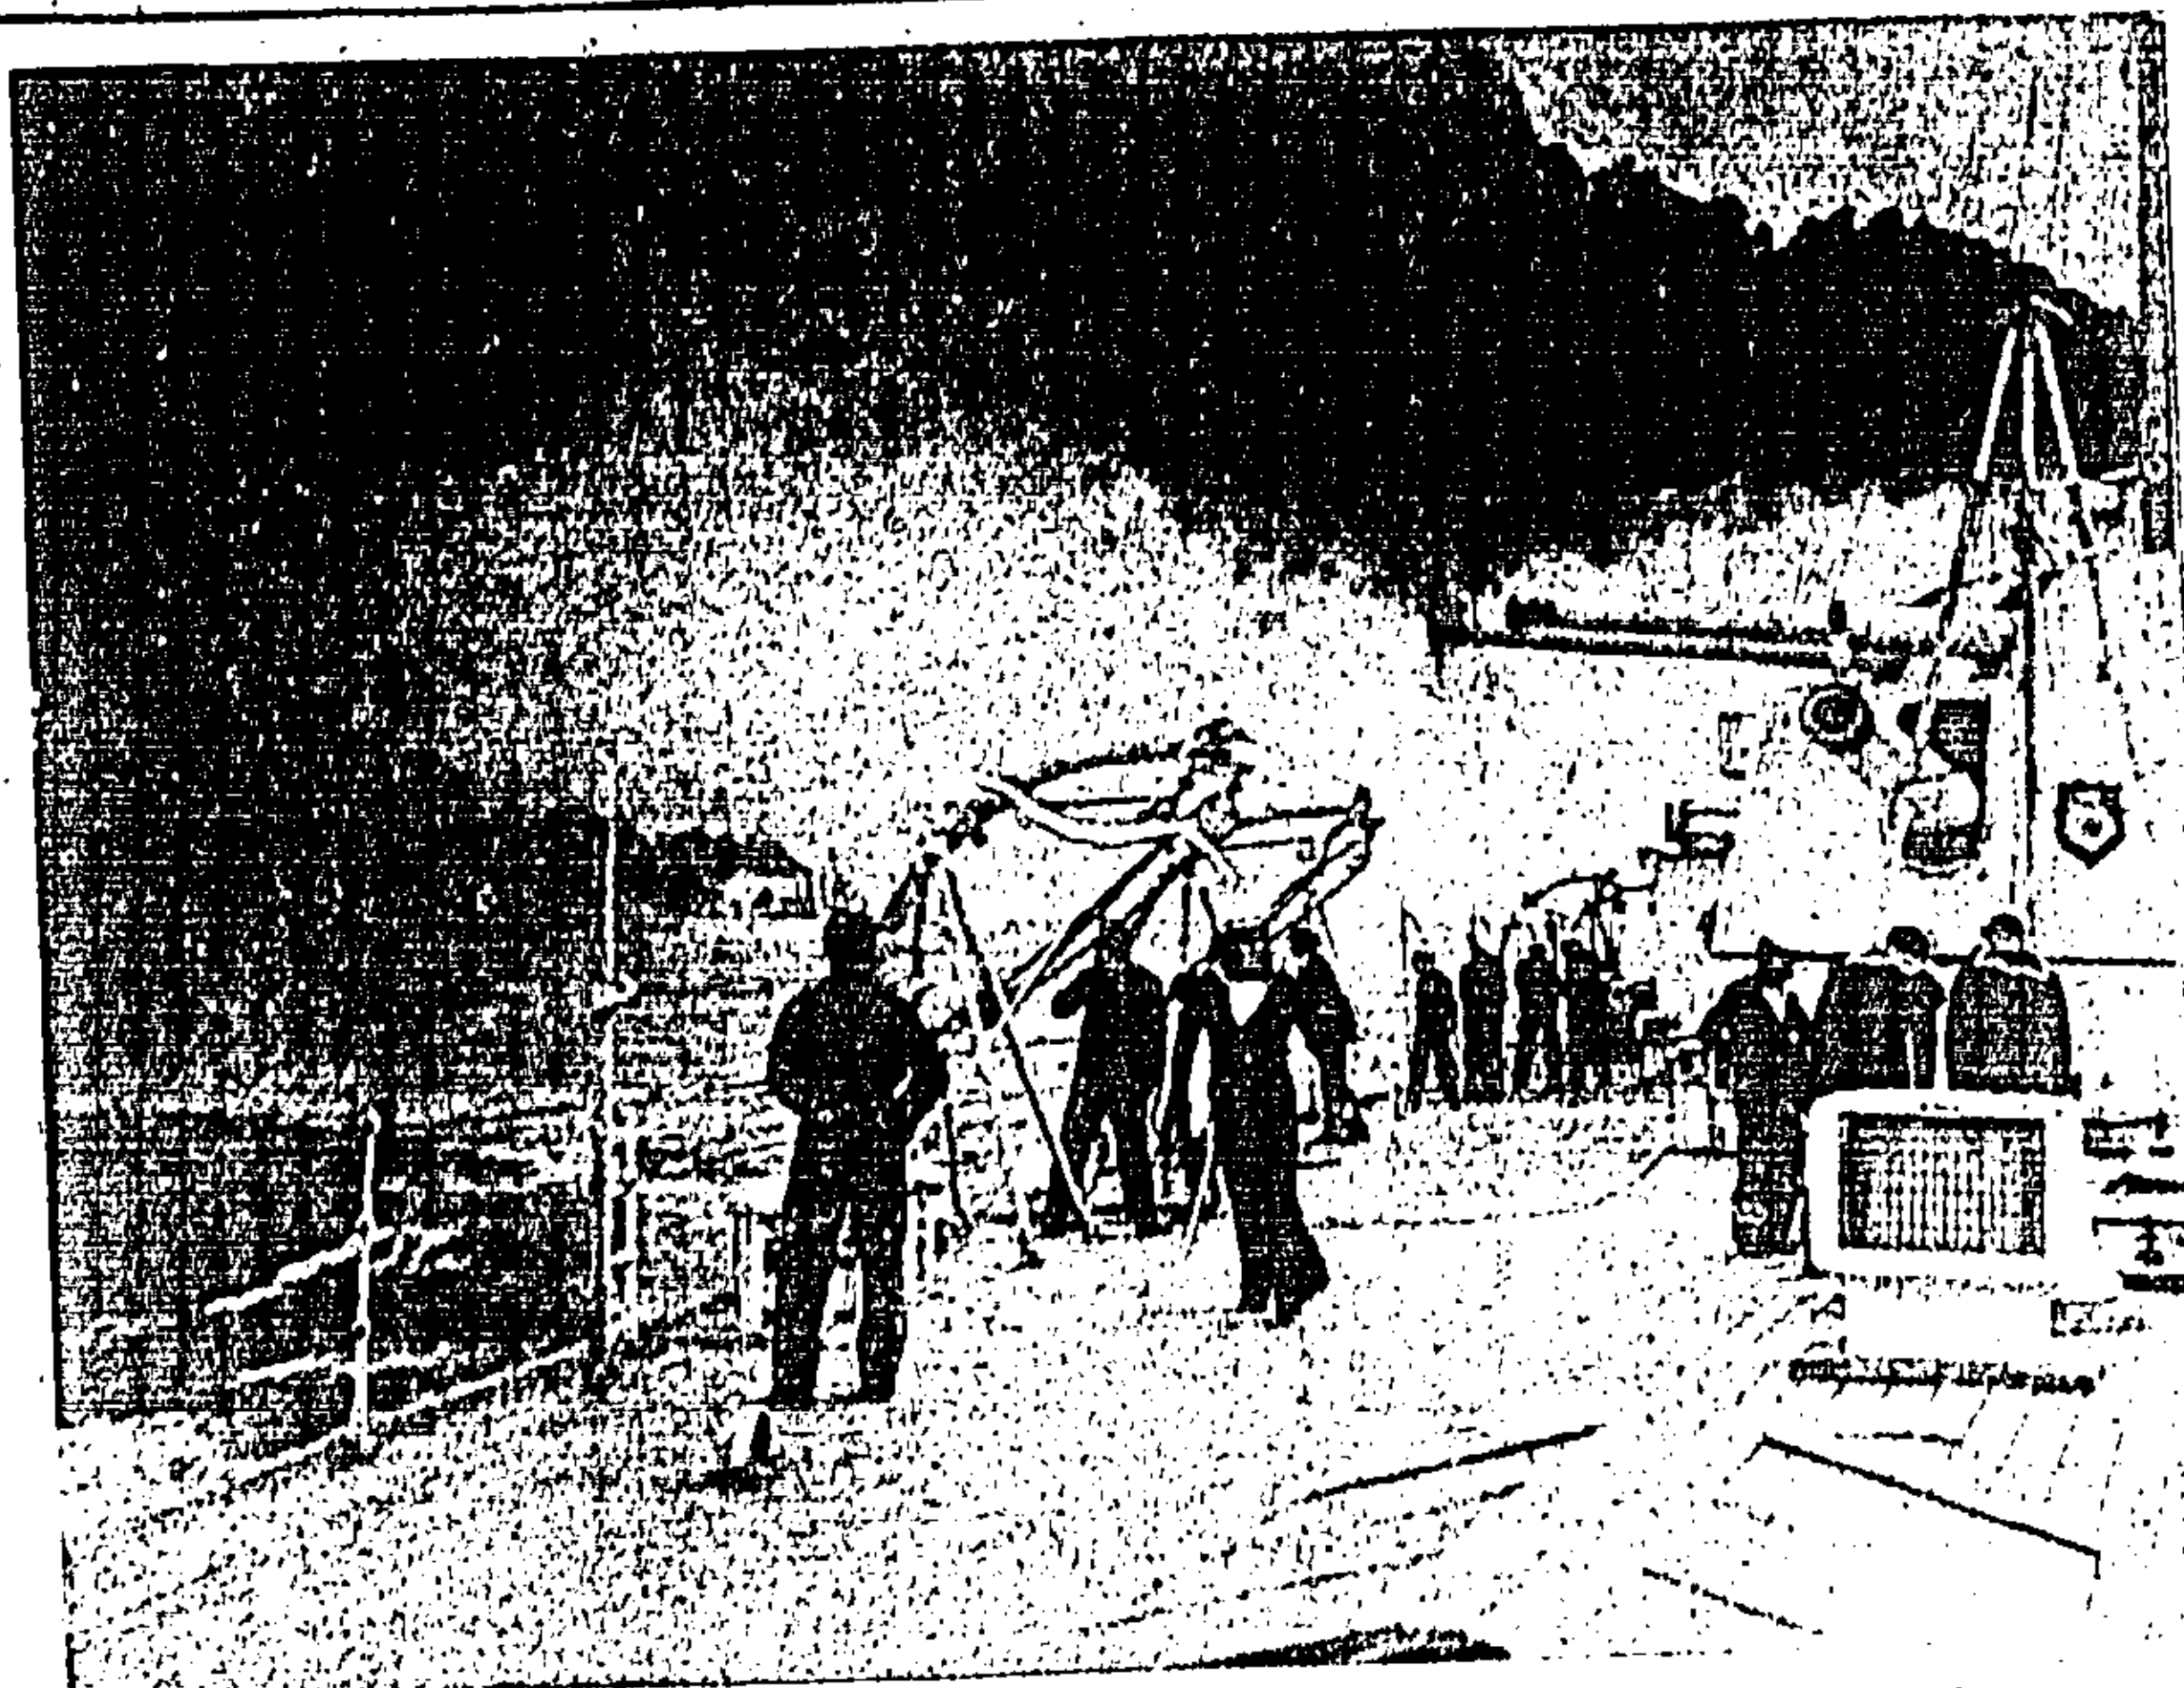

Their Majesties will have access to the magnificent ground-floor rooms, including the celebrated Salle de l'Horloge, and the Galerie de la Paix, where the Peace Conference meetings were held.—Trans-Ocean.

SHANGHAI, YESTERDAY.

AN AMERICAN, NAMED DR. PETERSON, SET OUT IN AN 11-METRE CHINESE JUNK YESTERDAY IN AN ATTEMPT TO CROSS THE PACIFIC OCEAN. HE IS ACCOMPANIED BY HIS WIFE.

Dr. Peterson, who is of German stock, has christened his junk "Hummel Hummel" after the popular Hamburg figure.

The German flag was flying from the masthead when it sailed from Shanghai with its course set for Yokohama. Dr. Peterson reckons that it will take him about six months to reach Los Angeles.

A similar attempt to cross the Pacific in a junk was made in 1926 by Capt. Ward who sailed from Hong Kong to Seattle. His vessel, however, was considerably larger than the one which is being used in the present attempt.—Trans-Ocean.

CAPITAL FOR SMALL FIRMS

Washington, Yesterday. A programme designed to facilitate the flow of capital to small businesses, in line with President Roosevelt's recent recommendations, was announced by the Stock Exchange Committee.

This will include the establishment of a unit to aid firms which intend to register issues of securities, reduction of the amount of financial information hitherto required in registration statements for small security issues, by established enterprises, and liberalising of rules by the exempting of certain issues of less than $100,000 from the registration requirements.—Reuter.

SUDETEN PARTY ONE MILLION STRONG

Prague, Yesterday.

Membership of the Sudeten German party is rapidly swelling the first million, according to the German press.

At the 1936 elections, the Sudeten German party polled one and a quarter million votes representing 47.5 per cent. of the total votes polled.

At that time the membership of the Sudeten German Party stood at 3,000.—Trans-Ocean.

STARTLING REPORT IN ITALY

ANGLO-FRENCH UNDERSTANDINGS

Rome, Yesterday.

The Italian press has suddenly cast aside its attitude of reserve towards the Anglo-Italian negotiations and now hails the impending signature of the agreement as an excellent achievement and a further notable contribution towards European appeasement.

At the moment, writes "Giornale d'Italia," when so many problems are encumbering European foreign relations and international collaboration, this return to friendly co-operation between Britain and Italy provides an essential prerequisite for European stability.

On the other hand, reports of planned closer military collaboration between France and Britain are invoking some unfriendly comment in Italian newspapers.

A SENSATION

"Tevere" makes quite a sensation of a report that there is already talk of merging the British and French air forces under the command of a French general.

The first international move of the new French Government it declares, is to attempt to compromise the military position of a great power by linking it up with the requirements of a senseless and bankrupt policy.

France is seeking, says the Italian commentator, to resuscitate the time when Europe was divided into two camps of good and naughty nations. But those days are now definitely swallowed up in the past.—Trans-Ocean.

French Take Firm Action In Tunis

PARIS, YESTERDAY.

THE FRENCH AUTHORITIES AT TUNIS HAVE ADOPTED A SERIES OF FURTHER MEASURES DESIGNED TO COMBAT THE ACTIVITIES OF THE ARAB NATIONALISTS.

After having ordered the dissolution of the Nationalist Party in general, the Resident of Tunis has appealed to the general population to preserve law and order and has made it known that he is determined to take drastic measures against all agitators.

In several smaller towns, the police have been trying to track down the persons who were responsible for the recent riots.

Fifty agitators who were arrested last Sunday have been handed over to the military tribunal for trial as the country is still under martial law.—Trans-Ocean.

DR. PIRELLI AS MINISTER OF STATE

Rome, Yesterday.

Dr. Alberto Pirelli, the well-known Italian industrialist and financier, has been appointed a Minister of State by Royal edict.

Dr. Pirelli has represented Italy at numerous international economic conferences and for several years held the post of president of the Fascist Federation of Industrialists.—Trans-Ocean.

Agreement Expected This Week In Chung Hwa Book Co. Strike

The "Sunday Herald" learns that the dispute between the Chung Hwa Book Company and their employees from Shanghai, which led to a dramatic "sit down" strike on March 11, will soon be settled.

Last week, the 800 workers who are continuing the strike held a mass meeting in Man Ming Theatre and discussed certain further amendments their employers proposed to make in the agreement with which the strikers disagreed.

Police pickets were posted outside the theatre while the meeting was in progress to prevent any disturbance and representatives from the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs were present.

It is now learned that matters are being smoothed out and it is expected that very shortly the strikers will resume work at Mau Tau Wai.

The Red Hand In World Unrest

Those who have listened to our Socialist orator—and it is not exactly an exhilarating pastime—must have noted how two words occur and recur in continual refrain, one the "Movement" and the other the "System."

They stand for a great deal in his political philosophy, these two terms; he opposes them to each other in eternal conflict; he conceives of life as neither more nor less than a struggle between these two, the Capitalist System and the Socialist Movement.

As for the System, which he also calls Capitalism, or, as he grows scornful, the Bourgeoisie, it is nothing less than civilisation itself; the Movement includes all the comrades whether Socialist or Communist, for although they may quarrel among themselves, like the woodpecker and his wife in the play, they are united in their enmity to the System. Mr. Attlee, for example, may be a mild-mannered man at Westminster, but he clenches his fist when he goes to Barcelona. After all, they both believe in Karl Marx, as the Shihs and the Sunnis both believe in Mohammed, and Marx taught them their Messianic creed.

The Golden Age

"It is odd," muses one of his biographers, Mr. E. H. Carr, "that class-hatred should have been regarded by Marx as the instrument destined to lead mankind into the perfect Communist Commonwealth."

Thus on the main issue they are at one: by revolutionary hook or parliamentary crook, the bourgeoisie must be abolished—liquidated or superannuated, no matter which—so that a universal proletariat may step into the golden age of a "classless society."

If we venture on a glance round the world, at this stocktaking season, to see how these amiable intentions are being pursued, we have to admit that at least the destructive part of the programme is going ahead merrily.

Fires Of Destruction

The System is everywhere being assailed; over a huge territory it has actually been "liquidated," and although the result is not exactly the golden age of the classless society, Russia makes a formidable base for the attack on the rest of the world. Three of the greatest military Powers, Germany, Italy and Japan, are now in league against the Movement; the Government of France at the present moment has its special difficulties in the face of what looks like a demonstration of the Movement's power in the capital; and the fires of destruction are well alight in the Peninsula.

Here, no doubt, I shall be told that the civil war in Spain is not an attack by the Movement on the System; but a defensive war waged by a legitimate democratic Government against an army in revolt. The truth is, however, that the Movement assumes Protean disguises. Just as the vampire, Dracula, entered the body of an English maiden, so the Movement entered the body of the Spanish Government, and from that well-chosen

Rage With Franco

To force the System into revolt is a piece of tactics much in favour with our own Socialist intelligentsia, although it did not occur to them that the revolt might succeed. Hence their rage with Gen. Franco at the present moment. "Cet animal est tres machant: quand on l'attaque il se defend."

As a matter of fact, the System came within an ace of being destroyed. "The outbreak of the war," says a disinterested observer, the American journalist, Mr. H. E. Knoblauch, "marked the virtual disappearance of private ownership in Loyalist Spain." It marked also, where the Government had control, the virtual disappearance of the Spanish bourgeoisie. Mr. Knoblauch gives as "conservative" estimates of those killed behind the lines 60,000 for the Madrid area, 30,000 for the

By IAN COLVIN

Valencia area and 60,000 for the Barcelona area, and he adds that these figures were furnished to the American, French and English Governments by their respective representatives in Spain. They are very terrible; they suggest frightful cruelty—massacre upon a great scale—yet I have good reason to believe they come short of the truth.

Uneasy Alliance

If we extend our survey to Asia, the prospect is rather doubtful than reassuring. In India the Movement has been working in uneasy alliance with Nationalism, as represented by the bourgeois party of Congress. The present leader of that party, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, a Brahmin lawyer of the middle classes, has visited Moscow and professes rather more than a platonic admiration for the Soviet economy.

Strikes In India

Only the other day a hundred of the leading zamindars of Behar—great territorial magnates, lovers of their land, proud of their ancestral possessions—actually went in deputation to the (Congress) provincial government and offered to give up their estates as the no-rent agitation had made their position impossible.

We seem to detect similar tendencies at work in the extraordinary series of lightning and lawless strikes over the past six months in such industrial centres as Bombay, Ahmedabad, Sholapur, Cawnpore and Calcutta. For its own purposes Congress has stirred up the workers, and is now alarmed at the results. Thus Gandhi in his paper, "Harijan," "The Sholapur affair and the labour unrest in Cawnpore and Ahmedabad show how uncertain is the control of the Congress Government over the forces of disorder."

Ganglion Of Disordered Nerves

In the North-West Frontier Province, the brother of the "Red Shirt" leader, Abdul Ghafur, is now Chief Minister. The Movement was at work there also: will it now be transformed into bourgeois constitutionalism? We shall see in due time.

So much, then, for our survey of this vast conspiracy of the Movement against the System. In the ensanguined ganglion of disordered nerves which our orator calls his mind the operating motive is the passion to destroy, and what we are examining is nothing less than a breakdown in or a revolt against civilisation.

It is not superfluous, then, to suggest that vigilance, unity, wisdom, patriotism are needed in its defence. Let us not forget the warning of Lenin: "Nothing is easier than to make the middle classes destroy themselves."

Britain Urging Paris To Support General Policy

Paris, Yesterday.

Political opinion in France has reacted strongly to the announcement that the Anglo-Italian agreement will be signed in Rome this evening.

It is generally presumed that the French Government has been kept fully informed about the progress of the Rome negotiations and according to reports appearing in the Paris newspapers one of the first results of the Anglo-Italian agreement as far as France is concerned will be the visit of the New Prime Minister M. Daladier to London.

Early to-day it was hinted that the French Premier would be too greatly occupied with his task of restoring the country's financial and economic affairs to permit of a journey to London.

Later however, it was announced that the visit had been arranged and that M. Daladier would embark on conversations in London on Wednesday, April 27.

On the other hand, there is no confirmation of a report of the impending visit to Paris of members of the British Cabinet. It deserves to be said, in this connection, that the new French Government is showing a distinct preference for a more reserved and "less parliamentary" attitude towards matter of foreign policy.

STRENGTH OF LEFT

Despite his striking success in the Chamber and Senate, M. Daladier does not feel that his Government is sufficiently consolidated to enable him to accelerate the development of events. There is still an undoubted strength on the Left and it is this that accounts for the reserved attitude which French Government circles are inclined to adopt towards all questions that have to do with Italy and Spain.

All the same, it is freely admitted in well-informed circles that preparations are on the way for holding an Anglo-French conference in the near future, seeing that it would require a conference of this sort to give concrete form to the Anglo-Italian negotiations.

BRITISH REQUEST

One thing appears certain. The British Cabinet will request Parliament not only to lend support to the British League of Nations' motion for a definite decision on the Abyssinian question, but also to restore normal relations with Italy by the immediate appointment of an Ambassador to Rome.

M. Flandin former Premier is at the moment being mentioned as the most likely candidate. — this post.

Another matter which may play an important role in the Anglo-French discussions is the question of setting up relations between France and National Spain. It is learned on good authority that the British Government has already sounded Paris on this point and has requested the French Government to consider the suggestion of appointing an Agent-General in Burgos.

The name of Simones Leon who was the Spanish Ambassador in Paris until the outbreak of the civil war is mentioned in connection with the appointment of a Franco Agent in Paris.—Trans-Ocean.

SIR ERIC PHIPPS SEES BONNET

Paris, Yesterday.

The British Ambassador in Paris, Sir Eric Phipps, called on M. Bonnet, the French Foreign Minister, yesterday, and it is understood that the main topic discussed was the plans for the visit of M. Daladier and M. Bonnet to London, which is now scheduled for the last week in April.—Trans-Ocean.

PRINCE LOUIS AND GRAND DUCHESS KYRA TO MARRY

Berlin, Yesterday.

The wedding of Prince Louis Ferdinand of Hohenzollern and the Grand Duchess Kyra, of Russia, will take place at Doorn on May 4. It will be conducted according to the rites of the Evangelical Church.

Dr. Doehring, the well known court preacher will officiate.

The civil marriage ceremony will be performed in Potsdam on May 2 and will be followed by a divine service conducted by Dr. Doehring in the Cecilienhof, near Potsdam, and attended by a Greek Orthodox priest who will bestow the blessing of his Church upon the young couple.—Trans-Ocean.

HITLER VISIT TO VATICAN: REPORT DENIED

Berlin, Yesterday.

The official German news agency flatly denies a report in the "Daily Telegraph", according to which the former Ambassador in Austria, Herr Von Papen, has been summoned before an investigation committee of the Secret Police to answer a number of questions regarding a report in the French papers about an alleged conversation of the Foreign Minister, von Ribbentrop, and the Papal Nuncio, Mgr. Orsenigo.

It is learned from an authoritative source that no such conversation has taken place nor has one been arranged for the future.

The conversation was alleged to have concerned plans for a visit of Chancellor Hitler to the Pope, but it is pointed out that the visit of Hitler to Italy is to be considered an official visit at the invitation of the Italian Government, and there is nothing to imply that Herr Hitler will visit the Vatican.—Trans-Ocean.

COUNT CIANO TO VISIT LONDON

Rome, Yesterday.

The Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano will visit London shortly. It is announced in the Italian Press.

This can be taken as an official intimation, since, owing to strict Government control of the press, the statement would not have appeared unless an agreement had already been reached between the British and Italian authorities.—Trans-Ocean.

The Great Revitaliser

LEG ACHES AND PAINS soon vanish when Elasto is taken. Painful and swollen (varicose) veins are forgotten and soon disappear, skin troubles clear up, leg sores become clean and healthy and quickly heal, piles are cured, inflammation and irritation are soothed, rheumatism simply fades away, and the whole system is braced and strengthened. This is not magic, although the relief does seem magical; it is the natural result of renewed blood and improved circulation brought about by Elasto; the tiny tablet with wonderful healing powers!

Not a Drug, but a Vital Cell-Food!

Elasto is something new to curative science; it dispenses entirely with the use of drugs; it is based on the knowledge that swollen veins, leg sores, piles, rheumatism, hardened arteries, heart weakness—to name but a few of the many ailments associated with bad circulation—are deficiency diseases; that in all such conditions there is a lack of certain vital constituents of the blood. Owing to this lack the body is unable to build up the elastic tissue needed to maintain the vein and artery walls and the membranes in a healthy condition, and a state of flabbiness results. Elasto restores to the blood the vital elements which combine with the blood albumin to form organic elastic tissue and thus enables Nature to restore elasticity to the relaxed and deteriorated fabric of veins, arteries and heart, and so to re-establish normal circulation—the real basis of sound health.

Read What Users of Elasto Say:

"No signs of varicose veins now."

THE INSIDE STORY OF NANKING

It Was A Quiet Sunday Morning

—BY—COMMANDER
"X"

FOR the foreigners the burning troops, but these were promptly question was whether the Chinese would decide to defend their Capital and how long it would take the Japanese to reach it. Such questions as whether the time had arrived to send up to Hankow for the winter clothes you had forwarded there for safety in August became of secondary importance. When to get out and how to get out was all that mattered. Some decided to join the ships which were leaving for Hankow. Others decided to board the ships which were proceeding to the highest commendation.

One By One The City Gates Were Closed And Filled In Solid With Earth And Timber To The Full Depth Of The Wall Until Only Two Were Left Ajar down river to Chinkiang, where they proposed to wait until the expected opening of the boom at Kiangyin took place. By November 25th most of the Embassies had departed for Hankow, leaving a few officials to care for their interests in Nanking, and by the end of the month all foreigners had left, except such of those as had been able to arrange to find accommodation on the few gunboats and commercial vessels, which were to stand-by in the Yangtze until the approaching wave of warfare had passed over; and except a few newspaper correspondents and certain very gallant American missionaries, and German business men, who were unprepared to desert the Chinese friends with whom they had so long associated. The true story of the work done by the Refugee Zone Committee has yet to come out of Nanking.

One By One The Gates Closed

In the opening days of December there was increasing evidence of the rapid approach of the Japanese forces. Much of the motor traffic, which during the days of the removal of the Government had roared up and down Chung Shan Road, left by the highways for Nanchang and Changsha; and there was a marked diminution of troop movement through the City. One by one the city gates were closed and filled in solid with earth and timber to the full depth of the wall, until only two were left ajar. The air raids increased in intensity. It was in order to avoid having to move during periods of alarm, that the informal meetings, organised by the Chinese Government at this time for the exchange of information, took place after dark. They were held to provide the foreigners still left in Nanking with a means of keeping 'au fait' with the situation, which was daily growing more serious, and also to provide an opportunity for raising any difficulties, which the tense situation might produce. There were a few complaints, chiefly concerned with questions of the commandeering of cars by retreating

The Safe Anchorage

Sounds of distant gun fire were first heard on December 8th, and by the morning of December 11th shrapnel could be seen bursting over the South wall, from the decks of the foreign ships, which were anchored a few miles above Nanking, round the Ewo hulk. Besides a number of barges and tugs, these included two British gunboats "Scarb" and "Crickel", two river steamers belonging to Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, three Standard Oil Company ships, two A.P.C. ships, and a timber ship of the Import and Export Lumber Company. The American gunboat "Panay", was anchored two miles lower down off the creek at the top end of Nanking, from which communication with the few foreigners left in the City could still be maintained by a phone situated in a godown on the bank.

"The Flag Captain, Commanding Officer, and Ward Room Officers of H.M.S. Scarb request the pleasure of the company of the British community, now afloat in the 'safe' anchorage on board H.M.S. Scarb at 11.30 to-morrow Saturday, 11th December, on the occasion of the anniversary of His Majesty's Accession."

Delightful Party

It was a delightful party. The guests had returned to their various ships and had just about finished a late lunch, when with a crash a shell burst on the river bank not 100 yards from the nearest ship. The noise disturbed the somnolence which had threatened that Saturday afternoon. Captains leapt to their bridges and called for steam. The doubt whether that first shell was a stray or not was soon settled as two more straddled the nearest ship. Clouds of smoke belched from the assembled funnels and it was not more than fifteen minutes before the merchant flotilla, festooned with the attendant small-craft, was under way heading upriver. The two gunboats remained to stand-by the hulk, which was full of foreigners and Chinese refugees in foreign employ, and, having slipped its anchor, endeavored to tow it in the wake of the other vessels. Before the vessels were all away at least a dozen shells had fallen into the "safe" anchorage, to which Nanking neutral vessels had moved at the request of the Japanese authorities. Some vessels were holed by splinters and two unfortunate Chinese boatmen were killed and some others wounded, but by sheer good luck there were no direct hits.

Came Over In Pairs

The shelling, however, only stopped for a while. When the ships were under way a mile or two further up, it was resumed and this time the shells were of larger calibre, possibly six inch. They came over in pairs, but the gunners evidently found the moving targets difficult to follow, because although they continued the shelling for about an hour, during which time they must have fired another forty rounds or so, they were still unable to hit any of the ships. It was impossible to locate the batteries from which the fire came, but they appeared to be several miles inland on the road from Wuhu to Nanking, occupied by the Japanese.

As the sun settled in the west, the flotilla came to anchor, the "Panay" with the three American ships, off San Shan, ten miles above Nanking, and the British vessels, within easy view, off Rossina Beacon, two miles higher up. That night the air was hot with radio messages, as the result of which the Flag Captain, the British Military Attache and the British Consul, transferred from H.M.S. Scarb to the steamer "Hsiangtshai", and went up to Wuhu to get into touch with the Japanese Army, which was reported to have reached that place.

U.S.S. Panay Under Weigh

On the morning of the 12th, a lovely, clear sunny autumn day, some gun fire was heard in the distance both above and below the concentration of neutral vessels, and about 9.30 a.m. the three American ships, escorted by the though some concern was caused about ten o'clock, when a number of Japanese military landing craft were seen steaming down the river and pulling into the North bank, onto which they ran up a small gun which was openly trained at the ships. But the feeling of security was confirmed, when the Japanese craft in a row steamed out towards the British gunboats, circled round them, threw a salute or two, which were promptly returned, and then went on on their way down river, leaving one boat to collect the gun and follow on later. There appeared to be no Chinese troops in the neighbourhood and the Japanese sailed down the Yangtze, stopping to burn an occasional junk, without meeting any resistance of any sort.

The British Grand Fleet recently undertook the largest scale manoeuvre since 1918. The Home Fleet opposed the Mediterranean Fleet 'somewhere' in the Atlantic. The 'battle' waged for days, aircraft carriers sent off their attacking planes and the object was to definitely prove whether destroyers, cruisers, battleships and submarines are vulnerable to aerial attack. DESERT CHIEF BURNS UP TRACK IN RECORD-BREAKING GALLOP

3 2/5 Seconds Off 1 Mile 171 Yards Record

HAS NOW BECOME MAIN CHALLENGER TO SILKYLIGHT

THREE MORE WINNERS FOR MR. ENCARNACAO

DESERT Chief's record breaking run over a mile and 171 yards provided the main feature of the first day of the Easter Race Meeting of the Hong Kong Jockey Club at the Valley yesterday.

Leading all the way round, Mr. Encarnacao, broke the China pony record for a mile and 171 yards by no less than 3.2/5 seconds, its full time being: 0.17.4; 0.40.3; 1.08.1; 1.37.0 and 2.05.0. The former record, later equalled by Soldier of Britain (167 lb.) and Soldier of Honour (163 lb.), was set up by King's Warden (168 lb.) on March 28, 1936. Desert Chief carried 164 lb. yesterday and won by many lengths from King's Warden.

On its display yesterday there seems very little possibility of it being beaten by the undefeated Silky Light to-morrow in the Easter Stakes.

The weather was ideal yesterday and there was a fair crowd present. The turf was very hard indeed.

Riding honours went to Mr. Encarnacao, who had three wins, a second and a third in seven starts, and there were altogether 38 jockeys on view, a number which practically constitutes a record for a day's racing. Mr. W. H. Choy and Mr. F. F. Li made welcome reappearances after long absences, while Mr. Norman Deltz was among the spectators.

"RAPIER" TIPS SEVEN WINNERS—OUT OF TEN!

The first six winners in a row and seven out of 10 during the day.

This was the record of "Rapier" in his race selections in "The China Mail" yesterday.

"Rapier", who has established himself as the most reliable local racing scribe, gave his readers yesterday: 1, Desert Chief; 2, Honeycomb Eve; 3, Cameronian; 4, King's Privilege; 5, Humdrum Eve; 6, Vixen Tor. Then came two races in which things went wrong. In the ninth race Night View was tipped to win, with Laughing Buddha second. Had Mr. Pih not delayed his effort this would have proved correct, but as it was, Laughing Buddha beat Night View by a neck. In the tenth race Golden Cow proved the right nomination.

Interport Hockey To-Day HONG KONG SHOULD BEAT MACAO BUT VISITORS HAVE STRONG TEAM

AFTER much speculation as to the merits and demerits of the Colony's hockey eleven, the great day for the Interport match against Macao has arrived, and this afternoon, commencing at 3 p.m. on the Navy ground, King's Park, should witness a fast and exciting encounter with the odds on the Hong Kong eleven, who are conceded ground advantage, although the visitors will not be wanting in moral support, having brought with them a large contingent from Macao.

SILKYLIGHT'S BIG TASK IN EASTER STAKES DUNBAR SEQUENCE JEOPARDISED

(By "RAPIER")
Considerable speculation has been aroused by the Easter Stakes, the fourth race on the programme to-morrow, and there has been a good deal of discussion with regard to the odds on which pony is likely to carry off the honours this year. Before proceeding to discuss prospects in connection with this highly important event, it may be of interest to give the results of the past six seasons, as follows:
1932—Won by Glenengles (Mr. Frost).
1933—Won by Diana Bay (Mr. Frost).
1934—Won by Liberty Bay (Mr. Proulx).
1935—Won by Liberty Bay (Mr. Proulx).
1936—Won by Liberty Bay (Mr. Proulx).
1937—Won by Bear Claw (Mr. Black).

It will be seen, therefore, that since 1932 the Easter Stakes has been won by the Dunbar Stable without a break, and there is no doubt whatever that they are just as determined to win again this year. Liberty Bay has not been entered, thus suggesting that they are relying on Bear Claw to continue their sequence of six wins.

SEVEN STARTERS?
I expect to see the following facing the starter:
Bear Claw (Mr. D. Black).
Cossack's Beauty (Mr. Y. K. Wouh).
Desert Chief (Mr. C. Encarnacao).
Expression Time (Mr. S. C. Liang).
King's Warden (Mr. V. V. Needa).
Silky Light (Mr. B. A. Proulx).
Soldier of Britain (Mr. H. C. Pih).

Much as I admire Mr. Needa as a jockey fully capable of getting the most response out of his mount, I am afraid King's Warden's chance of winning is only a very poor one, and I am accordingly ruling it out of my reckoning.

The race should, therefore, revolve into a great battle between Bear Claw, Desert Chief and Silky Light, and I have no doubt whatever that spectators will be given the thrill of a lifetime when these three great ponies fight out the finish.

There are many who feel fully confident that Bear Claw will win again but it is freely admitted that it will have to be exceptionally good condition to stage off the challenge which will inevitably come from either Desert Chief or Silky Light. Both Bear Claw and Silky Light have to concede 5 lbs. to Desert Chief, and this factor must be taken into consideration.

DESERT CHIEF'S RACE?
At the Annual Meeting, Desert Chief polished off the first mile of the Derby distance in grand style, but the same can be said of Silky Light in the Champions event, the first mile of which was executed by Liberty Bay in 1.54 2/5, and as Silky Light ultimately won the race after trailing behind for several lengths, it is very capable of winning the Easter Stakes to-morrow.

Much, of course, depends on Mr. Proulx, and if he can get Silky Light within striking distance on rounding the bend, it may win, but if it has to win on a straight it will take its vital stage.

Desert Chief is undoubtedly a fast, but it is freely admitted that it will have to be exceptionally good condition to stage off the challenge which will inevitably come from either Desert Chief or Silky Light. Both Bear Claw and Silky Light have to concede 5 lbs. to Desert Chief, and this factor must be taken into consideration.

ABLE AMAZON VERY FIT
Able Amazon appeared to me the other morning to be extremely fit, but not to the extent as to warrant any hope of it being able to beat Strathroy.

I cannot honestly see how Strathroy can be beaten in spite of the weight. The second position seems hardly to be decided, and I consider that it will be fought out between Lancashire Chips, Electron, and Able Amazon. Under Mr. Needa's hard riding, Electron should take second place, with Lancashire Chips getting the better of Able Amazon for third position.

Desert Chief is undoubtedly a fast, but it is freely admitted that it will have to be exceptionally good condition to stage off the challenge which will inevitably come from either Desert Chief or Silky Light. Both Bear Claw and Silky Light have to concede 5 lbs. to Desert Chief, and this factor must be taken into consideration.

SLAZENGERS make the world's best rackets says FRED PERRY

'I have used nothing else myself since 1932'

'Slazenger's rackets can't guarantee you a place on the Centre Court,' says Fred Perry, whose unrivalled record includes three successive Wimbledon championships, 'but they will make it a whole lot easier to get there. Just to grip a Slazenger in your hand makes you feel points to the good, and, when you feel like that, better tennis is just a matter of course.'

Millions of Gallons maturing—
Older and better than ever

Never was your White Horse as good or as old as it is to-day. Years ago, exceptionally heavy stocks of the finest whiskeys were laid down to anticipate sales which the quality would justify. These stocks are now fully matured. The result is that WHITE HORSE is now older and better than ever before, excellent as it was in 1932 and preceding years.

This advance in quality and age will be maintained. White Horse is now the equivalent of a fine liqueur.

Macao XI Loosen Up

Looking extremely fit and the acme of keenness, the Macao XI Interport Hockey team indulged in a short "loosener" at King's Park yesterday afternoon against a Naval team and were successful in a fast game by the only goal of the game, scored late in the second half by F. Ramalho.

As a match, yesterday's encounter proved disappointing from the spectators' point of view. Play was confined to 20 minutes in each half and naturally neither side had sufficient time in which to settle down to any really effective combined movements. Breakneck speed in all phases was the order of the day with the result that there were innumerable errors and minor injuries, but fortunately the umpires viewed these with leniency.

NOT TOO SERIOUS
That Macao were not taking matters too seriously is illustrated by the fact that no fewer than four reserves were fielded. They were: S. Sarmiento, goalkeeper, S. Ferreira, centre-half and right-back, M. Soares, right-half, and R. Angelo, centre forward.

The remainder of the team, having arrived early yesterday morning, were resting in their hotel in order to be fighting fit for the big game to-day.

Of the play yesterday, sufficient was seen of the visitors to indicate that they will give a good account of themselves to-morrow. Without exception, all the team proved to be extraordinarily clever with their sticks. In this respect, however, Hong Kong may yet have reason to be thankful. Most players appeared to be more concerned with "prettying" than with constructive methods. If they adopt the same style of play against the quick-tackling and robust spilling methods of the local side, they are unlikely to meet with very much success.

Interport Hockey To-Day

with Alberto Airoso, his supporting player. Pedro Angelo, the centre forward, has also played in all the Interports, but he will find himself fully occupied in trying to evade Willis Reed.

Mr. W. J. Lyle, the Singapore Police cadet, will officiate as Macao's umpire, while the Colony official will be Mr. G. T. Palmer.

Entrance fees for the two matches are—$1 for seats, 50 cts. standing, and Service men in uniform: 50 cts. seats and 30 cts. standing.

Kwong Wah Win Junior Football Shield

ORDNANCE SCORE FIRST BUT ARE THEN OUTPLAYED

FOR the first time in several years the Junior Shield has passed from the keeping of the Services. Kwong Wah defeating the Third Division Ordnance eleven by the odd goal in five in the final of the competition on the Kowloon ground yesterday.

Both elevens started at a pace that obviously could not be maintained in the heat of the strong afternoon sun. The Ordnance prospects of making history by being the first Third Division eleven to win the competition appeared distinctly rosy when Munton opened the scoring with an excellent "header," but an equaliser by Chin Chi-fun almost immediately afterwards, however, proved a distinct shock for the soldiers and, although both sides continued to serve up some good football without any frills, it was obvious by the time the interval was reached that the Ordnance were beginning to feel the strain.

Not even the most pessimistic of the Ordnance supporters, however, was prepared for the extent of their deterioration during certain periods of the latter half when passes were allowed to go sadly astray, men were left unmarked, and the whole eleven, with the exception of the defence, presented an appearance that bore little resemblance to the side which ousted such formidable performers as the Middlesex and Navy from the competition.

Surmised efforts at a revival were made as time grew short, and it was during one of these moments that they succeeded in scoring their second goal, but they rarely looked like winning, and had Kwong Wah not contrived to leave their shooting boots elsewhere a much more handsome victory would have resulted.

LEADER SUBDUED
Munton, the leader of the Ordnance attack, had an unusually poor day and, apart from opening the scoring in the early stages of the game, was almost completely subdued by the lightning-like tackling of Hou Yung-sang and his partner. Both Duffield and Emberson worked hard, but missed the support of an inflexible line that found the task of countering a speedier Chinese attack in the heat of the afternoon just beyond their limits.

Scadding, in the outside-left position, gave a good account of himself until an injury in the closing stages of the initial half forced him to leave the field for several minutes, from which stage he was rarely able to produce enough speed to evade the opposing defence.

Vaughanux was as sound as ever, and was ably partnered by Humphries, while Money, between the sticks, effected several good saves, though he did not always appear confident in his handling of the ball.

Hou Yung-sang, Wong Wah-gay, Wong King-cheung and Chin Chi-fun were all prominent in a Chinese eleven which, apart from some erratic shooting by the forwards, gave a sound display and whose superior speed proved the deciding factor in deciding the destiny of the Shield.

ORDNANCE SCORE FIRST
Munton opened the scoring for the Ordnance, Chin Chi-fun equalising immediately in a return game. Both sides had some narrow escapes during the ensuing exchanges, Kwong Wah changing ends to take command of the exchanges to such an extent that Money was called upon to make at least half-a-dozen saves in as many minutes. Lau Wing-kee went Kwong Wah ahead and Wong King-cheung added the third goal.

The Ordnance scored when Lee Kwok-kee sent the ball into his own goal during a goalmouth scramble some five minutes from time.

Mr. J. McKelvie presented the Shield and medals at the conclusion of the game.

Ordnance: Money; Humphries; Vaughanux; Rides; Atcoe; Fisher; Cooke; Lang; Emberson; Munton; Duffield and Scadding.

Kwong Wah: Lee Kwok-kee; Hou Yung-sang; Chung Fai-lan; Cheung Wing; Young Tse-ling; Wong Wah-gay; Louie Bing-kun; Lau Wing-kee; Chin Chi-fun, Da Rocha, and Wong King-cheung.

Playing on a sun-baked ground in hot and sticky weather, the ladies found their opponents too hot, especially L. Skelton and L. Wexley, who scored the Grampus goals between them. The "Y" scored through Mrs. M. Read (2) and Miss M. Smith.

The losers were compelled to invite members of other teams, including Lt. Colman, the well-known Navy all-rounder, and Miss B. Parsons, of C.I.A. Ladies, to fill in gaps caused through the non-appearance of two of their own players, and the substitutes both gave excellent displays.

Miss Lakeman was never sure of herself between the sticks, but Burke was, and broke up many attacking movements by timely interceptions and quick tackling. Miss F. Fowler gave her good support.

Miss M. McCaw, centre-half, and Miss B. Parsons, right-half, were the pick of the intermediate line, Miss Buchanan lacking sting in her clearances.

SOUTH CHINA TAKE NO CHANCES IN MATCH AGAINST KOWLOON

One Step Nearer Championship

FINE POSITIONAL PLAY AND ACCURATE BALL DISTRIBUTION

SOUTH CHINA "B" are taking no chances in their bid for the First Division Football Championship. Yesterday, at Caroline Hill, they took a big step towards making sure of the top position by registering a decisive victory over Kowloon, whom they defeated by five goals to nil.

Although leading by two clear goals when the interval arrived, South China were a little flattered to be holding such an advantage, as Kowloon had had an almost equal share of the first half play, at any rate certainly in the midfield exchanges, but after the change of ends there was only one team in the picture, and without a shadow of doubt, that team was South China. They kept Kowloon strictly on the defensive throughout the second period, and, but for some stout defensive work by the Kowloon full-backs, might easily have crowned their dominant approach work with an even bigger margin of goals.

The difference between the two teams was a question of current positioning and thoughtful anticipation. Whereas Kowloon accomplished a good deal of clever work in an individual sense, they failed to turn it to good account by poor collaboration. South China, on the other hand, positioned themselves splendidly and repeatedly found each other with quick first-time passing that threw the Kowloon halves right out of gear.

Their defence proved rocklike, and Blake and his colleagues could make little headway against the determined tackling of Lau Mau and Leung Tak-wai. Tam Kwan-hon was never extended and was himself of confidence with the few balls he was called upon to dispose of.

The halves, adequate in defence, were best as an attacking unit, and their fine combination with the attack was the reason for the South China supremacy. At forward, Chan Tak-fai was well polished, and it was not until towards the end of the match that he broke clean through to score a splendid goal. He was quick to see that his path was usually well blocked, and thus displaying a high degree of selfishness, Yeuk Hon-woo and Lau Chung-sang foraged to good purpose and the extreme wingers, Yeung Shui-yick and Lee Shek-yau, were always on the alert for chances.

LOSERS' SOUND FOOTBALL. Although so decisively vanquished, Kowloon played sound football. Chief honours fall to White and Eastman, who tirelessly stem the rampant but Bliss, Maxwell and Bulpin work South China attack, not without a certain measure of success. The inside forwards, Knox and Honnibal, were prone to lie too far back, and Blake, when he did find himself in possession, which was not so often, was given little support. The centre-forward could make little headway against the strong Chinese defence and had a poor game. Jorge displayed cleverness on the left-wing, but an early injury to Cruz threw the right-winger off his game. Lau Cheung-sang and Yeung Shui-yick scored before half time and after the interval a defensive blunder gave South China another point. Bliss having the misfortune to turn a ball into his own net. A shot by Yeung Shui-yick, from a sharp angle, brought the fourth and Chan Tak-fai rounded off the scoring when he accepted a neat through pass from Yeuk Hon-woo to run straight through and net. South China "B": Tam Kwan-hon; Leung Tak-wai, Lau Mau; Yau Wai-hing, Lin Tak-po, Tso Kam-hong; Yeung Shui-yick, Yeuk Hon-woo, Chan Tak-fai, Lau Cheung-sang and Lee Shek-yau. Kowloon:—Jefferys, G. White, Eastman, Maxwell, Bliss, Bulpin; Cruz, W. Knox, Blake, Honnibal and Jorge.

KOWLOON GO DOWN 6-0 TO MIDDLESEX

Izzard's Two Penalties In "Hat Trick"

In their Second Division encounter at Chatham Road yesterday Middlesex easily defeated a weak Kowloon eleven by six clear goals. It was well for Kowloon that the soldier forwards were in poor shooting form as they missed numerous golden opportunities owing to weak finishing. Owing to the ineffectiveness of the Kowloon forwards, Coppard had a quiet afternoon and was not called upon to clear his lines on more than half a dozen occasions. Haig and Lawlor combined well at full-back, and were always sure in their tackling. In the intermediate line Williams was outstanding, being the best player on view. His clean tackling and judicious distribution of the ball were a delight to watch, whilst he was also prominent with a number of hard drives that only narrowly missed.

PLUCKY FULL-BACKS

For Kowloon McDonald was weak between the sticks, and it was due to his fumbling that two of the goals resulted. Owing to the weakness of the half-backs, Humphrey and Abbas had a gruelling afternoon, but they put in plenty of good work and could in no way be blamed for the heavy score registered against them. Although was the only forward to impress, but he received little support from the remainder of the line.

Williams opened the scoring direct from a free kick, and before the interval was reached. Williams, Marable and Izzard scored. On the resumption the soldiers eased up considerably, which Kowloon were never capable of taking advantage of. However, mid-way through this half Middlesex were awarded a penalty when Abbas handled in the area, and from the resultant spot-kick Izzard netted. Ten minutes from the end Izzard completed his "hat-trick" with another penalty goal.

Middlesex:—Coppard, Haig, Lawlor, Dawes, Williams, Pike, Taylor, Frost, Izzard, Mellor and Marable. Kowloon:—McDonald, Humphrey, Abbas, Rocha, Smith, Lee, Abing, Drosel, Lapsley, Jorge and Reio.

CLUB DRAW AFTER 3-0 IN ARREARS

5TH A.A. BDE ARE RUNNERS-UP

5th A.A. Brigade made certain of the runners-up position in the Second Division yesterday, at Sookunpoo, sharing six goals with Club, who provided much stiffer opposition than was anticipated, and finished on level terms after being three goals in arrears.

At the same time, R.A. had much the better of the play, and despite the fact that the Club converted two penalties, should never have allowed their opponents to take a point. They made the mistake, after being well in the lead, of taking things too easily, and consequently found themselves, in the last five minutes, in considerable danger of losing the field with no points at all.

For the greater part of the game, the Gunners enjoyed a marked advantage, possessing two fast wingers in Percival and Bancroft, who made good use of the ball, centring accurately, and cutting in at the right moment, though the inside forwards, particularly Carley, the leader, did not make the best use of the opportunities provided, trying to make certain of their shots, instead of enacting a snap drive.

SOLID DEFENCE

In the main, the Gunners' defence was solid, Corbin being outstanding at right-back, but his partner, Baker, was inclined to be slow, and was caught out of position on more than one occasion, by well placed passes from Forrow, the Club inside-right, whose combination with Lammet on the wing made the Club right flank a potent source of danger.

Winstanley, the R.A. pivot, held Wilson well in check and showed sound judgment in his distribution, though he rather disappointed the soldiers' supporters when he ballooned a penalty over the bar in the second half. Calvert, at inside-left, appeared to be rather subdued, evidently suffering from a knee injury, but he sent in some of his characteristic long shots.

Carley opened the soldiers' account a few minutes after the commencement, and Bancroft increased the lead mid-way through the half, tapping the ball in following a scrimmage in the Club goalmouth. With a really good drive from the edge of the penalty area, White sent the Gunners further ahead just after the interval, but the Club attacked the margin when Forrow converted a penalty, and Wilson was rewarded for his persistence when he scored the Club's second goal. Another penalty, again tried by Forrow, saw the Club on level terms, and the game closed on a hectic note with the R.A. defending desperately.

EIGHT FOR ROYAL SCOTS

Bottom team of the Division, Eastern could not hold Royal Scots, with the result that the military team secured a comfortable and overwhelming victory by eight clear goals at Caroline Hill yesterday.

The Scots did much as they liked and scored on four occasions in each half. McDonald (3) and Pow were the first-half scorers, and McDonald, Pow (2), one from a penalty, and Milroy added further points.

GROGAN SCORES FOUR OF SIDE'S SIX GOALS COSTA'S VERSATILITY

AFTER appearing very evenly matched throughout the earlier part of the game, Middlesex secured a runaway victory over St. Joseph's in their First Division encounter at Sookunpoo, yesterday, registering four quick goals in the closing stages to leave the field victors by 6 goals to 1.

The Saints did not, however, deserve to be so humiliated, for at times they played really bright football, particularly in their advances down the wings, but lack of punch in the centre saved the Middlesex defence, Dave Leonard being very obviously subdued by Bright, while one or two tragic defensive blunders, of which Grogan took full advantage, tell the tale of the soldiers' tally of goals.

Had Delgado, whose place was taken by A. Costello, been able to turn out in the Saints' goal, it is probable that the result would have been very much different; for, though Costello brought off some very neat clearances in the second half, his lack of inches and experience gave the soldiers two gifts in the first half, blows from which the Saints never really recovered.

Both sides took the field below strength, and the spectators were treated to the sight of the veritable rout until the arrival of Costello, when he went out to right-back, only to move up later to centre-half to allow Bowen, who was obviously ill at ease leading the attack, to his more accustomed position at full-back.

The Middlesex were without Saw, whose place was taken by Riches, who showed up to better advantage when he changed places with Courtney, who moved to inside-left from left-half.

The soldiers set off at a cracking pace, Courtney and Britton being conspicuous in lively dashes down the left, but the Saints' defence appeared unlikely to give anything away, and it was rather surprising when Grogan nodded the ball over Costello.

CHINESE ENGINEERS HOLD POLICE

An interesting and hard fought game was witnessed on the Club ground yesterday when the Police and Chinese Engineers met in their Second Division fixture and shared two goals.

The scoring was opened in the first minute of the game when Wong Mow Kwai, Police centre-forward, who subsequently showed himself to be an opportunist of the first order, netted following a scramble in the Sappers' goalmouth. The Engineers replied strongly through their left-wing combination, Lee Kow-lim and Ching Sang, but weakness in front of goal spoiled their efforts. In this half the Police impressed by the accuracy of their passing, the Sappers' intermediate line finding great difficulty in relieving the pressure on the defence.

In the second half it was evident that the Engineers were determined to draw level, their strong tactics totally disorganising the Police movements and throwing them on the defensive. Lei Wai-lam was unfortunate to strike the woodwork with a hard drive after an excellent exhibition of clever footwork, but the equaliser came soon after, from a "spot" kick taken by Chan Yin-kuen following the fouling of the Sappers' inside-right in the penalty area.

The game finished with both sides fighting hard for the lead, hard and accurate drives from the Sappers being saved only by the brilliant goal-keeping of Lam Wah-shing for the Engineers.

SHORT STORY

Night Raid

It was one of those occasions when you felt instinctively that things were too good to last. The sector had an evil reputation for "liveliness."

Behind the line, the deserted shambles that had once been a busy little town, the battered, broken road, strewn with twisted wrecks of lorries and limbers, and the dreary, wasted torment of the fields all bore witness to it. The few trees left standing were leafless, lifeless stumps, long since forsaken by the birds. There was a ghastly smell of death everywhere.

Nevertheless, although we had been in the line two days, everything was quiet. Occasionally there was a rally by the artillery on both sides, and more frequently the rattling fire of machine-gun or the "ping!" of sniper's rifle; but there was nothing to speak of to disturb the peaceful atmosphere.

From away on the right, in the direction of Bapaume, came the thunderous rumbling of heavy firing. Something was going on down there.

I stood on the fire-step, my arms folded across a sandbag. Beside me "Ginger" Martin did the same, his long, sad face puckered in puzzled reflection. We started out through the wire entanglements, across the torn wreck of earth, to where the German trenches, three hundred yards away, were clearly visible. Nothing moved anywhere.

Midway between the lines, lying starkly on its side, we could see the corpse of a German soldier. From behind us a shell whined overhead and dropped short. We could feel the earth shudder underneath the impact as it burst, sending up a huge column of black smoke from No Man's Land. Ginger got down into the trench disgusted.

"Strewth!" he said, "what a

We could hear footfalls in the communication trench, and hastily remounted the fire-step. It was Sergeant-Major Glassley. The sight of him always made me think of the devil in Dante's "Inferno." He was gaunt, in a sleek, panther-like way, with a thin, dark face, and his eyes and very red mouth always leered.

"Both you men are single, aren't you?"

"Yes, sir." We were both vaguely apprehensive.

"Good! It's thought that a new division has taken possession over there"—he nodded towards the German lines—"and they may get up to something. Anyhow, brigade headquarters want a prisoner brought in, and the C.O. has ordered a raid for to-morrow night. I want six volunteers."

We shifted uneasily. I looked at Ginger, but his face was blank. Raising was a dangerous game, nearly always ending in disaster. And when it was over you had to go out again to bring in your own wounded, for you were the only men who stood a chance of finding them in the darkness.

We hesitated.

"Of course, I can't press you," He leered at us. I could feel the hardness underneath the almost silky tones. "But the job must be done by somebody. There'll be extra leave, probably. Shall I take your names?"

We knew what would be in store for us if we refused. Glassley didn't get there until an hour would "save it up" for us. "Very well, sir," we said.

"Good!" He entered our names and regimental numbers in a little notebook. "Mr. Calvert will lead the raid with Sergeant Mullins. When you're relieved, go off duty to the supports and report at company headquarters at ten to-morrow. Good luck!"

He made his way along the trench like some purring beast. Bad news spreads quickly. Very soon we were surrounded by Job's comforters, and we were glad to escape into the supports an hour later. We shared a dug-out with Wilson and Backer, who were "for it" as well, and sat up into, smoking, and playing cards after we had discussed the prospects of the raid from all the angles we knew.

Sergeant Mullins came in, carrying a rum jar, and measured out double rations. He'd been in half a dozen raids, and knew the job backwards.

The rum knocked me out, and I slept like a dog until the morning.

We had fried bacon for breakfast (it was always cold boiled bacon in the line) and marmalade, and they were very liberal with the tea.

"I've heard they feed a feller like this when they're goin' to 'ang 'im," Ginger said morosely. I told him to shut up.

We went along to the "office" at ten o'clock, and were joined by Henson and Tomkins, who completed the raiding party. Mr. Calvert was pale, and Mullins looked as though he hadn't slept all night. The colonel was there. He was a stout man with white hair and a brick-red face, and there was no imagination in his thought. God was some one attached to the General Staff. Sergeant-Major Glassley stood at the back purring.

The company commander bent over the map. "You will go through a lane in the wire here," he said, quietly tracing a course with a pencil. "Sergeant Mullins will cut the enemy's wire here. Then you dash in. Each man will be given his particular job by Mr. Calvert, and he must carry out his orders to the letter. Remember speed is everything, and you must bring back a prisoner. The artillery will create a diversion, and you will be covered on both flanks by Lewis-gun sections. That's all, I think!"

The colonel cleared his throat. He looked at us, he said, to make a nice clean job of it, and to bring back at least one prisoner. If we were very quick our losses would be negligible. He wished us luck.

We filed back into the sunlight. I felt suddenly weak and empty. If we were very quick our losses would be negligible. Ginger turned a sickly face to me. "D'you think there is anything after all this?" He stared about him. "I mean—like the sky-pilots say—Heaven!—Hell!—Life after—"

"Shut up!" I snarled.

We all went back to the dug-out, silent. We wrote letters home. It was rather difficult, but I managed mine somehow. Ginger found the task almost beyond him.

"If I let 'em know I'm worryin' they'll worry too, see? I don't want that." An idea occurred to him. "I might get a blighty one though." He brightened up wonderfully at the prospect.

We spent the rest of the day strolling round the supports, and again playing cards.

"Stand to!" in the lines was called at half-past eight, but we for us if we refused. Glassley didn't get there until an hour would "save it up" for us. "Very well, sir," we said.

"Good!" He entered our names and regimental numbers in a little notebook. "Mr. Calvert will lead the raid with Sergeant Mullins. When you're relieved, go off duty to the supports and report at company headquarters at ten to-morrow. Good luck!"

He made his way along the trench like some purring beast. Bad news spreads quickly. Very soon we were surrounded by Job's comforters, and we were glad to escape into the supports an hour later. A corporal from the signal came up. The artillery would open out in five minutes' time, he said. Calvert nodded, and consulted his watch. He was cool as steel. "All right . . . We'd better go. . . . Come on, boys! And may we all be lucky!"

He mounted the ladder and climbed the parapet. Sergeant Mullins followed him, and then the rest of us, while fellows crowded round, talking in subdued tones. We might have been going on a long journey, whereas we would be back in less than a quarter of an hour.

Calvert and Mullins carried revolvers. Wilson and Backer were armed with a large bag of Mills bombs apiece, and the remaining four of us had our rifles and bayonets. We filed through the lane in the wire without mishap, moving quietly. We had had some rum before starting out, and I felt oddly exhilarated. A cool wind was blowing across the silent wante before us. We stumbled onwards, over the broken, brown earth. Very lights fired from the German lines roared overhead to break the darkness, and in their ghastly greenish light we'd stand stock still. You could be seen only if you moved.

Slowly and quietly, picking our way, step by step, we went on. Suddenly the guns started. They kept up a heavy fire on the right and across us, and in the deafening noise we moved more quickly. Coming to a great shell hole, we halted and lay down in its crater. Dimly silhouetted before us, we could see the German wire. There was a whispered conversation between Calvert and Mullins, and then the sergeant wriggled forward on his stomach, with the wire cutter.

The barrage was intensified, and shells rained over the enemy lines.

Filtering through the din came the sound of excited German voices. My forehead and hands had become clammy with sweat, and my heart was pounding furiously. I could feel Ginger, who was close to me, trembling. His blackened face was drawn and anguished, and his teeth were chattering.

"Pull yourself together," I hissed fiercely into his ear.

"It's—it's this waiting I can't stand. It's awful," he answered. Hours seemed to pass before Mullins crawled back through the darkness. "Come on," he said.

One after another we crept forward on hands and knees, and wriggled our way as quietly as we could beneath the wire. He had cut the bottom strands, but in the darkness it had been impossible to do the job well. We were all scratched and stung by it before we got through. We crawled on until we were only a few yards from the trench. Wilson and Backer working their way to the extreme wing positions. Two bombs a man were passed down silently.

I went cold with fear. Did they, in that trench, know we were there? Were they waiting calmly to butcher us?

Calvert quietly gave the word, and we withdrew the safety pins from the first bombs. We counted: "One!—Two!" and then hurled them into the trench. A series of muffled roars, like the explosions of a giant firework, were pierced by shouts of surprise, and agonised screams. Each man threw his second bomb. Pan-atomium broke loose inside the trench. Calvert shouted an order, and, scrambling to our feet, we charged.

The trench was a whirlwind of falling earth, blood pools, and men with shattered faces. I saw Tomkins' bayonet catch the throat of a man as he leaped into the trench, and the rifle clattered from his hands. Calvert fired point blank into the face of another, and blood spurted from the man's mouth as he sank to his knees.

Wilson and Backer were covering us, throwing bombs down the trench on either side. I heard a German stick-bomb whiz overhead from somewhere. It burst, and Henson fell on his face, screaming, and then he lay still.

"Quick!" Sergeant Mullins, inkmanly cool, caught hold of a youngster. "Hold him!" he roared, and Ginger and I seized his arms. He was a blonde boy and very young. His helmet had been knocked off in the scrimmage, and his hair stood on end.

"I'm sorry, sonny," Mullins bawled above the din. Then very slowly he stooped and deliberately jammed his revolver at the boy's back.

"No matter!" The voice was a scream. He scrambled up and gripped the unconscious boy by the collar, and him after us. No man's war was a living hell. Machine-fire raked and swept it from the flanks of the German line. Lights rocketed into the sky, and every yard of the way was lit up by the whizz-bangs, minenwerfers, shells, and high explosives. We burst about us everywhere shaking the whole world in pieces.

I peered back through the haze of smoke, and saw the others pounding after us, and as I looked

Inferences During The Play

ALMOST every card during the play of a hand conveys a message to observant declarers and defenders. The opening lead of a Queen usually tells the other players that the leader holds also the Jack-10, or the Jack-9. The lead of a 2 may be either a singleton, or the fourth highest of a suit headed by an honour. The lead of, say, the 9 or 8 against a suit contract may be the "top of nothing"—a lead from the 9-6-3, for instance—and the declarer may Calvert fell on his face and Wilson, stopping in his tracks threw up his hands, spun round, and crashed to earth.

Now creeping, now running, now stumbling and falling over unseen obstacles, now pitching headlong into a shell-hole, now throwing ourselves flat, as a shell burst near us, coughing, gasping, and sobbing, we hurried on drunkenly. My lungs were bursting; my eyes were on fire. The unconscious boy became terribly heavy.

A high explosive shell burst almost overhead, and shrapnel hailed about us. Ginger pitched forward with a startled cry and lay still. I let go the boy and crawled beside him. Blood was gushing from his nose and mouth and there was a gaping wound in his neck. I was sick and trembling, and I wiped the sweat from my face with my sleeve.

Mullins loomed up. "Come on!" he shouted.

We left Ginger and struggled on, lugging the German boy with us. The shelling increased, and for a time we lay panting and sobbing in a shell-hole. I was aching all over, and suddenly weary. I wanted to lie down, very still, and never move again. But Mullins tugged my arm and we went on, every step and shuffle a racking pain.

We reached the wire, and somehow got through it. I was deaf, blind, choking. I never saw the trench, but just fell in it. I felt myself being carried somewhere, but didn't care. Everything was black. The world had ended.

I stirred and opened my eyes. Somebody was bending over me, forcing rum between my teeth. Two candles burned feebly, throwing grotesque shadows.

"It's all right, old man," I don't know who spoke. Lying beside me on the floor of the dug-out were Sergeant Mullins and Backer. One of Backer's puttees had been taken off, and his leg was bandaged. He groaned. The bandage was soaked in blood. Mullins was smoking a cigarette. His mouth was set hard, his eyes were dull. Outside the shelling had quietened.

"Were you hit, sergeant?" I asked, surprised by the hours' weakness of my voice.

"No, I'm all right." His voice was flat and lifeless, and he stared before him, not bothering to turn his head.

A candle guttered, and some one lit another one. There was a purring sound, and I became aware of Sergeant Major Glassley. He was standing beside the company commander. I don't know why, but I shivered.

"Where's Ginger Martin and the others?" I asked.

Mullins turned his head. "We are the only ones to come back." His voice was dead. "Mr. Calvert—all the others were killed—I've been out there again since we got back—I know."

"I'm very sorry," Captain Harris said. Mullins shrugged. "It's a lovely war."

"Sergeant Mullins!" It was Glassley's voice without the silk. "Oh, go to hell!" Mullins threw away the butt of his cigarette and closed his eyes.

Glassley started, but the captain laid a restraining hand on his arm.

"The prisoner, sir—where is he?" I was anxious to know about that boy.

Glassley purred, his red lips leering. "The raid was a ghastly failure. The prisoner must have been brought back very carelessly."

I stared at him, unable to understand. "Oh, yes! It was a failure. The prisoner was not adequately protected. A piece of shrapnel hit him in the stomach. He died ten minutes ago, and we never got a word out of him."

Mullins and I looked at each other, and then, quite helplessly, we burst out laughing.

"It's a lovely war!" he said.

infer from the card that any playing honours in the suit are held by the opener's partner.

Inferences of this type are among the simplest and most direct in the play of Contract Bridge hands. As a result, wily exponents nowadays, even at the risk of deceiving their partners, often make unorthodox leads, and orthodox players thereby are induced into making incorrect inferences. But there is another category of inferences that can be made, depending in the first instance on intelligent interpretation of the bidding. Such inferences are often right and, if made at the vital moment, may be worth hundreds of points.

Here is a simple example. The hand was:—

The bidding was:—

NORTH EAST SOUTH WEST
1 N.T. No 3 D. No
4 D. No 4 H. No
5 H. No 6 D. No
6 H. All pass.

West had to open. From the bidding he "counted" South to have five Diamonds and North to hold three. East, his partner, must, therefore, be void, so West played his Ace of Clubs, followed by a Diamond—which gave East a ruff to set the contract at once. Had he not made this Diamond inference, West would probably have opened with his Jack of Spades and South would have scored his small slam.

I have never been an advocate of Asking Bids. They often give away as much information as they bring to the bidders, as in this example. East dealt at "Game All":—

NORTH
S—Q 9 7 6 5
H—K 7 5
D—A 9 8
C—9 4

WEST EAST
S—4 2 S—3
H—Q 9 8 4 H—A J 6 2
D—Q J 10 3 D—7 6 5 4 2
C—8 7 3 C—J 6 5

SOUTH
S—A K J 10 8
H—10 3
D—K
C—A K Q 10 2

The bidding, after Spades had been agreed, involved the making of an Asking Bid in Hearts by South, and his partner's response showed second-round control and an outside Ace. The final contract was "Six Spades," and West had to lead. His normal and safe play was the Queen of Diamonds; but West was very shrewd. He deduced that the likeliest way to defeat the contract was to find his partner with the Ace and Jack of Hearts. So West opened with the Queen of Hearts. . . . and South went one down in a contract he must make against any other lead.

A last example! South dealt:—

S—K 10 4
H—K 7
D—A J 8 6 4 2
C—K 2

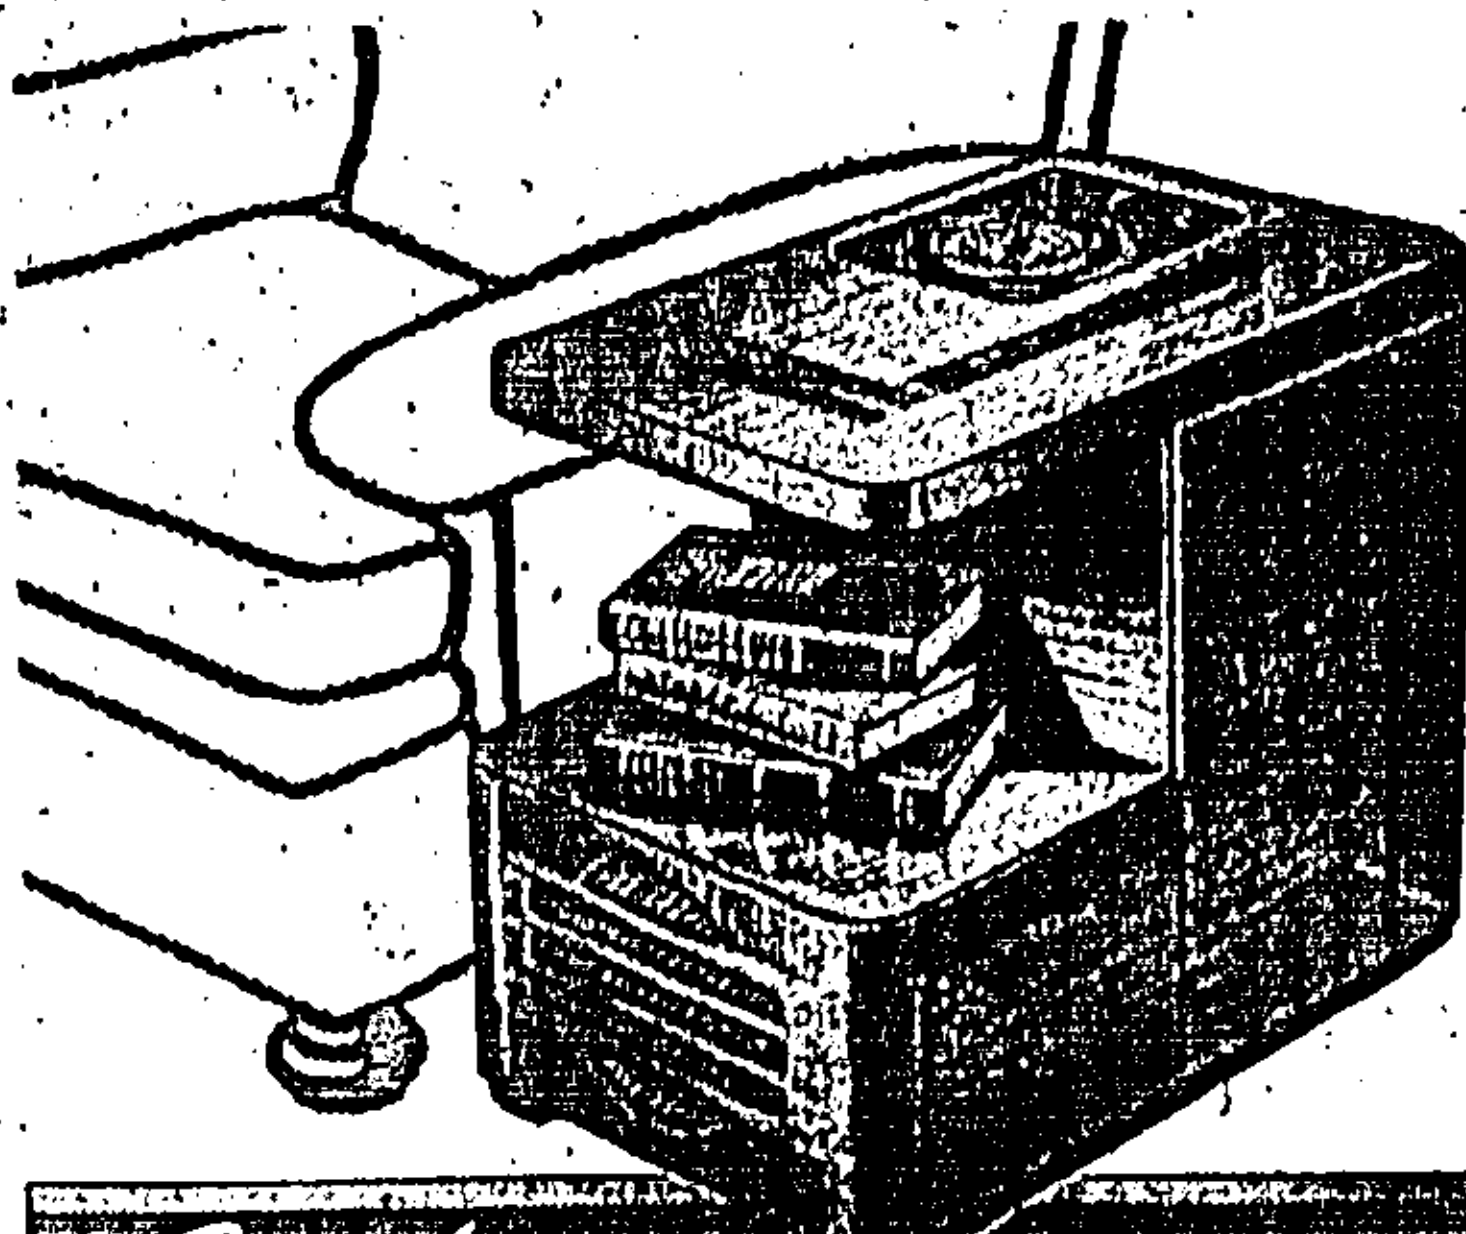

WEST EAST
S—9 S—Q 6 5 3
H—Q 5 H—J 9 6 4 3 2
D—9 7 D—10 5
C—J 10 9 8 7 5 4 3 C—6

SOUTH
S—A J 8 7 2
H—A 10 8
D—K Q 3
C—A Q

The bidding was:—

SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST
1 S. 3 C. 4 D. No.
5 N.T. No. 7 D. No.
No. No.

The making of the contract would appear to depend on a "blind" finesse for the Queen of Spades. But North had the bidding to guide him. West's overcall of "Three Clubs" without the Ace-King-Queen, and with his partner opening with the 6 of Clubs, indicated an 8-card suit. The rest was easy. North discovered during the play that West held two Diamonds and two Hearts. He must, therefore, have only one Spade. So North played his King of Spades in case West's singleton was the Queen (which it wasn't), and later took the certain finesse through East.

CHINA'S TAIERCHWANG EPIC Foreign Military Officer's Authentic Story

DALADIER'S LONDON VISIT ARRANGED

Paris, Yesterday.
The French Premier, M. Edouard Daladier, and the Foreign Minister, M. Georges Bonnet, have accepted the invitation of the British Government to visit London, it is learned from well-informed quarters.
The French Ministers will leave Paris on April 27 and will return three days later. The actual conversations with British Ministers will take place on April 28 and 29.
Main points to be discussed, it is stated, will be Franco-British military co-operation, Franco-Italian relations, and The Spanish problem.
An official announcement regarding the visit is expected to be made to-night.—Trans-Ocean.

REFUGEES TO SERVE IN FRENCH ARMY

Paris, Yesterday.
Among those without nationality living in France and who, according to the recent decree will have to undergo the usual French period of military training, will be the so-called "Saar refugees" and those whose German nationality has been declared null and void by the Reichs Government.

In this connection, the emigre newspaper calls attention to the obligation of all Germans living abroad to report at the nearest Consulate.

Whoever does not do so within the prescribed period automatically forfeits his German nationality.

LOSS OF NATIONALITY

This means, the paper says, that by far the greater part of German emigres will shortly have lost de jure German nationality altogether.

As far as those persons were born between 1904 and 1915, they will be required to register for military service in the French Army.—Trans-Ocean.

EIRE TO HAVE NEW PRESIDENT

LONDON, YESTERDAY.
ELECTION OF A NEW PRESIDENT OF EIRE HAS BEEN FIXED FOR MAY 31. NOMINATIONS WILL BE ON MAY 4 AND CANDIDATES MAY WITHDRAW THEIR NOMINATION TO MAY 11.

The contest will be by popular vote. Neither Mr. Eamonn de Valera, the Premier, nor Mr. Cosgrave, the opposition leader, wants a contest but hitherto out of half a dozen names mentioned, agreement cannot be found on one candidate acceptable to both sides.

JUST A FIGUREHEAD
The President will be purely a constitutional figurehead with powers and functions almost identical with the Governor-General.

He will not take the Oath of Allegiance to the British Crown, and will assume office at the end of June.—Router.

Japanese Killed Total Between 5,000 And 7,000

HANKOW, YESTERDAY.
RELIABLE, IF BELATED, CONFIRMATION OF THE CHINESE TRIUMPH AT TAIERCHWANG WAS PROVIDED IN AN INTERVIEW WITH REUTER TO-DAY BY A FOREIGN MILITARY OFFICER.

The officer, who visited the front line trenches during the Taierchwang battle and also entered Taierchwang on April 7 together with the victorious Chinese army, gave a vivid description of the battle.
He described it as a "well earned victory, the entire campaign plans being well made and executed."

Producing photographs showing five feet deep, in which Chinese soldiers had stayed during the battle, he said, Japanese artillery and aerial bombardments. They only emerged to engage the Japanese troops in street fighting.

The Chinese used heavy artillery and mechanised guns, exchanging shots with the Japanese artillery, and, in the opinion of the foreign officer, the Chinese artillery had the better of the Japanese in point of accuracy and effectiveness.
Chinese aircraft, he said, also gave valuable support. In one day the foreign officer counted 22 Chinese planes bombing Japanese troop concentrations.

JAPANESE KILLED
He estimated that the Japanese in the Taierchwang battle, lost between 5,000 and 7,000 killed, mostly in hand-to-hand fighting when the Chinese forces closed in from all sides.
The foreign officer marvelled at the stubborn Chinese defence at Taierchwang, especially in view of the complete lack of properly constructed defence works there.

DUG-OUT HEROISM
The Chinese soldiers dug holes along the bank of the Grand Canal, while inside Taierchwang the foreign officer found in every house, holes in the ground about

NO ALLIANCE WITH FRANCE

Paris, Yesterday.
Rumours of an impending Franco-British military alliance are circulating in Paris.
In an interview to-day, the Foreign Minister said he knew of no such proposal, though the Government was expecting closer relationships between the general staffs.—Trans-Ocean.
